Three Solons Defend Move On Expenses

Hurl Challenge
At Charge Of
Illegal Billing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three House members Friday challenged what they called published charges they had pulled off bar and liquor bills on the government while staying at a Honolulu hotel in 1957.

One of the three, Rep. John J. Flynt Jr. (D-Ga.), denounced the stories as false and malicious and as "damnable lies."

Taking the House floor for the second time during the day, Flynt defended his expense vouchers as proper and declared that he has never billed the government for liquor or any other personal expense.

"I apologize to no one," Flynt said in angry tones. His colleagues applauded him four times during his 30-minute speech and gave him a rising ovation at the finish.

INTENDS

Flynt said he intends to ask for apologies from the Washington Post and Life magazine, which were among the publications carrying copyright stories Wednesday of the congressional expense accounts.

The stories, written by Don Oberdorfer and Walter Pincus of the Knight Newspapers, Inc., said dozens of House expense account bills have been altered or amended in recent years.

The result, the stories said, was to assure spending of government funds for liquor, music and the hotel expenses of congressmen's wives.

Flynt was one of six members.

Turk Works Long Hours At New Job

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Gen. Gursel walked into the prime ministry on the morning of May 27 when his Committee of National Unity overthrew Premier Adnan Menderes. He has literally not walked out since.

An aide said the general is working 16 to 20 hours a day in his new three-fold job. The 64-year-old soldier is officially described as head of the state, of the government and of the committee.

He works, eats and sleeps in a small suite of offices.

MOVE

He will move later into the lavish presidential mansion, commanding a spectacular view of Ankara.

There the big-shouldered man with sparse white hair will live until he turns the country over to an elected civil administration.

Now, however, his private quarters consist of a small antechamber behind his office. In it is a simple iron bed which he ordered moved to the ministry soon after he took over. It is described as being so hard that he has three mattresses on it to insure reasonable comfort.

The wood-paneled room also contains a small couch, three easy chairs covered with red brocade, and a few minor furnishings.

Associates describe Gursel as a genial man with many interests, fond of jokes and easy to get along with.

"You feel very comfortable when you talk to him. He is a warm sort of person," one aide said.

Area Writer Found Dead

FERRIDAY, La. (AP) — Roman Miller MacDougal, 52-year-old mystery writer, was found dead in his home near Clayton, five miles north of here, Friday.

He had been in ill health and recently returned from the Veterans Administration Hospital in Alexandria.

Dr. Herman Gibson, Concordia Parish coroner, said the body, clad in pajamas and a dressing gown, was found by a Negro maid.

Dr. Gibson ordered an autopsy but indicated death apparently was due to natural causes.

MacDougal had written mystery novels for the last 20 years. He was working on the final drafts of two mysteries, "The Giant Shadows" and "Lament of Doves."

A native of Vidalia, he was a graduate of Tulane University and served in World War II.

He had no immediate survivors. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Moscow Out To Welcome Van Cliburn

MOSCOW (AP) — Van Cliburn came back to Moscow Friday for a riotous reunion with fans who cheered his first success when he won the Tchaikovsky competition three years ago.

The prize won at the Moscow Conservatory set him off on a successful career and the youthful pianist told reporters returning home like coming back to "my second musical home."

In an unprecedented Moscow scene, about 1,000 persons crowded around the conservatory and another 1,500 jammed into neighboring blocks.

MILITIA

Teams of militia worked to keep them under control, aided by conservatory students wearing red armbands. There also were loudspeakers urging the throng to move along but no one paid any attention until well after the concert started.

By intermission it had dwindled to maybe 50 persons but at the end 1,000 who had been at the concert waited in the courtyard.

JES' Ramblin'

New Stars

Celebration of Memorial Day as well as of the Confederate day the past week, was lacking the enthusiasm that such a day received in past years.

The postoffice and City Hall in Monroe untied the new national flag with two new stars added one for Alaska and the other for Hawaii, but it must be admitted that real enthusiasm was lacking.

We hope another year that there will be a sea of flags displayed and that enthusiasm will burst forth everywhere in the United States. Let's work to that end!

The incoming board of directors of the Ouachita Chapter of the American Red Cross, at their June session just held, elected the following officers: W. Durwood Cann, new chairman; E. L. Carter, first vice chairman; Bert Root, second vice chairman.

FROM 50 SCIENTISTS Mystery Disease Gets Attention

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fifty medical scientists of nine nations pooled Friday what little they know about a potentially disabling or killing disease which most laymen never heard of even though thousands have it.

Although the disease — called sarcoidosis — was first described 90 years ago, scientists still don't know what causes it or how to cure it. They can't even define it precisely.

They do know it can plague any organ of the body and cause a host of ailments ranging from skin rash to kidney stones and, occasionally, heart failure.

The disease has received so little public attention, perhaps because it cures itself in a majority of cases, that there is no common name for it. Even the

Davis Taking New Look At Vote Measure

'Bad Character'
Bill Returned
To Calendar

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE—Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said Friday he is going to take "another look" at the administration's bill on voter qualifications, a measure the House has opposed.

"I think we should look at it," Davis told reporters at a press conference. "The purpose is good, but I wouldn't want to carry it too far."

The bill would prohibit citizens of "bad character" from voting if two persons in the same precinct of the voter signed an affidavit.

Glancing around his office at reporters, Davis said, "I bet I could get two people to sign affidavits against everybody here."

EXCLUDED PRESS

He added, "Maybe I ought to exclude the press."

But he wound up the matter by saying he would study the bill further before bringing it onto the floor of the House for a vote.

Before the House adjourned Thursday, Davis' leaders returned the bill to the calendar when they ran into stiff opposition.

Conducting his third press conference since the session began, Davis opened up somewhat more than previously.

He rambled from subject to subject, including the tidelands case, the Rainach break, his personal income and records to roaches in the mansion.

When reminded that he was requesting more revenue to operate the mansion while at the

Food, Drug Decisions To Be Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special committee of scientists will review all Food and Drug Administration technical decisions based on recommendations of Dr. Henry Welch, ousted for profitable outside activities.

Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming reported this Friday to a Senate subcommittee which revealed that Welch had received $237,134 from investments in medical publication activities since 1953.

The publications had business relations with drug firms which Welch policed in his $17,500-a-year job as head of FDA's antibiotics division.

REQUESTED

Flemming, who requested Welch's resignation May 18 after the committee disclosures, said a group of nongovernment scientists will conduct the review of decisions recommended by Welch.

He said that "although no drug was or could be approved solely on the basis of Dr. Welch's recommendations" the review would be made "to be perfectly sure of the safety and potency of the drugs" involved.

The special review board, Flemming told the committee, will be appointed by Dr. Detlev Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences.

FROM 50 SCIENTISTS

scientific name sarcoidosis is a misnomer stemming from old and now discarded belief that the disease was related to cancer.

Because of the large assortment of symptoms it produces, sarcoidosis has been confused with many other diseases such as tuberculosis, some fungus malady, and certain industrial diseases such as beryllium poisoning.

One theory, the one being most actively investigated, is that sarcoidosis may be an allergic malady caused by sensitivity to pine pollen.

Scientists from Sweden, Denmark, England, Scotland, Belgium, South Africa, Japan, Switzerland, Uruguay, and the United States thrashed over what they exchanged for farm and industrial machinery. The United States has been taking about half of Cuba's sugar at 2 to 2½ cents a pound over the world price of 3 cents.

The 100 million dollars Soviet credit is to be repaid over 12 years at 2½ per cent interest. Moscow agreed to buy five million tons of sugar, one-fifth of it at world prices, and the rest to be exchanged for farm and industrial machinery.

Havana, Mikoyan opened a Soviet exposition in a ceremonial at which wild and still unexplained shooting broke out, made a swing around revolutionary Cuba and signed the trade agreement by which Moscow agreed to buy a fifth of the Cuban sugar crop for the next five years.

Canadian Head Visits Eisenhower

Gives Views
On Khrushchev's
Latest Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada's Prime Minister said after meeting with President Eisenhower Friday that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's new attack on the President is no harsher than past onslaughts.

John G. Diefenbaker, the Canadian chief, also called for future East-West summit meetings — "if that could be achieved." He said this "would constitute a tremendous forward step" in easing international tensions.

Diefenbaker spoke to newsmen after a 2½-hour discussion with Eisenhower at the White House. But he made plain he was voicing his own opinion.

LEADER

The 64-year-old Canadian leader flew in from Ottawa at noon for a quick, 21-hour official visit as Eisenhower's guest. He was due to depart for Winnipeg Saturday morning.

In his arrival statement at National Airport, the Prime Minister called for strengthened unity against "the propaganda of divisive ideas and the dangers of accurate missiles."

Diefenbaker said he and Eisenhower ranged over U. S.-Canadian and world questions during their chat. The two chiefs were alone for about an hour, then were joined by top aides.

Diefenbaker said the subject of a possible future summit meeting was not discussed. But he indicated there had been considerable talk about the East-West Paris conference which sank before it got started May 16.

Soviet Leader Accepts Bid To Tour Cuba

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Friday accepted an invitation from Prime Minister Fidel Castro to visit Cuba.

The warmup for the tour included a sugar trade pact and 100 million dollars credit arranged in Cuba last February on a visit by First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

No date was set, but it seemed doubtful that Khrushchev would go to Cuba before cool weather in late autumn.

Khrushchev has agreed to visit Austria June 30-July 7. He also has agreed to visit Liberia, the Negro republic set up in the 19th Century as an African home for freed Americans slaves. The date for the Liberian visit, like that to Cuba, is indefinite.

EXPERTS

Mikoyan is the trade expert who has served as an advance man for many of Khrushchev's tours, including the one to the United States last September.

Havana, Mikoyan opened a Soviet exposition in a ceremonial at which wild and still unexplained shooting broke out, made a swing around revolutionary Cuba and signed the trade agreement by which Moscow agreed to buy a fifth of the Cuban sugar crop for the next five years.

Physicians Called To Visit Rhee

HONOLULU (AP) — Doctors were called to examine Syngman Rhee Friday after the former Korean President had a sleepless night. Friends said Rhee, 65, was not seriously ill, as far as they knew.

Rhee and his Austrian-born wife, Francesca, 56, are staying at the beach home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Choi at Kaneohe, about 20 miles from Honolulu.

Rhee has seen only close friends since arriving May 29 after a flight from Seoul. He has refused to talk with newsmen.

HEALTH

Friends said he speaks and moves slowly and lapses into long silences between sentences. They became concerned about his health.

Mrs. Choi, whose husband is a landscape architect, said Rhee hasn't talked much. He sits on the porch or walks among flowers in the garden.

Mrs. Choi said Rhee has refused to discuss even with close friends his resignation as South Korean president or the turmoil since the recent Korean election.

Rhee stepped out April 26 following a series of riots in which hundreds of Koreans were killed or injured. The rioters protested the election was rigged to favor Rhee's Liberal party.

Since his departure from Seoul charges were made in the National Assembly that millions of dollars in foreign exchange were misappropriated during Rhee's 12-year administration.

Woman Lost After Crash Locates Help

ASH MOUNTAIN, Calif. (UPI)—A San Francisco woman stumbled into a Sequoia National Park ranger station Friday, six days after surviving a plane crash in the High Sierra.

Janet Robertson, 25, told rangers the pilot was killed in the crash of their light plane near 9,000 feet high Hockett Meadow. She had wandered aimlessly without food before locating the station.

The pilot was Jack Steele, 28, sales engineer for a San Francisco industrial chemical manufacturing firm.

WALKED

Steele and Miss Robertson took off from Harper Airport at San Carlos, Calif., last Saturday for a holiday weekend in Las Vegas, Nev.

The crash occurred about 60 miles east of Fresno.

Miss Robertson estimated the crash scene was about three or four miles from the ranger station.

Rangers described her condition as "very weak." She suffered bruises and possible broken ribs in the crash.

New Attack May Change Atmosphere

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev's bitter new attack on President Eisenhower was viewed among Moscow diplomats Friday night as an apparent effort to smash finally the pro-Eisenhower sentiment remaining in the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Premier at his news conference Friday called Eisenhower dangerous, lacking in will power and fit only to be "manager of a children's home."

Khrushchev quoted Eisenhower as saying the United States feared a reunification of Germany—exactly the opposite of the formal stand the United States has taken.

And in a sideswipe, Khrushchev said West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer belongs in a lunatic asylum.

VIOLENCE

The violence of the attack could change a good deal of the atmosphere here. For a long time Eisenhower has received sympathetic comment from the man in the street in Moscow; indeed, Khrushchev last autumn was calling him a man of peace and using other terms that could only bring the average Soviet citizen a most favorable view of the U. S. President.

Now all this may be considerably changed. Just how it will affect relations between the United States and the Soviet Union is hard to assess. Certainly Khrushchev's attack on American leadership is not intended to improve the relationship between the United States and its allies.

Posters pasted all over Moscow show a rocket hitting a plane carrying a panic-stricken pilot. The poster carries the one word, "Peace."

This is a dig at the United States. Yet, as a counterweight, extra militia had to be called out for the occasion.

McKeithen Has One Opponent For Commission

As the hour for filing for public service commission posts drew near to the deadline, John McKeithen of Grayson, incumbent commissioner from the third public service commission district, had only one opponent in his bid for reelection.

Arthur Watson of Natchitoches, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee for the district, said a few minutes before 5 p.m. yesterday that L. S. (Buck) Hooper of Shreveport had qualified to run against McKeithen.

Hooper ran for state office on the KKK ticket in 1948 when the former governor made his initial bid for the state house.

NO MONROVIAN

Rumors earlier Friday said that a Monroe man was to qualify for the public service commission post. However, 10 minutes before the deadline, no other opposition had appeared.

Watson explained that candidates could mail their papers to him if he were not in his office, readily available, but he said that he had been in all day and did not plan to leave before the deadline hour.

Watson also said that one opponent had filed for Raymond Heard's seat on the state board of education. Filing was J. D. Waggoner Jr. of Plain Dealing.

conference in the Kremlin's Sverdlovsk Hall Friday to give details. He said he would have presented it to the Paris summit meeting but that President Eisenhower wrecked the conference.

During the meeting with newsmen, a correspondent of the government newspaper Izvestia asked him for comment on the U.S. State Department declaration—made at the height of the U2 spy plane furor—that America will protect its allies in the event of an attack.

"It was in no way a wise statement," replied the Soviet Premier. He termed it foolish because it showed the United States refused to admit last month's U2 spy flight over the Soviet Union was "aggressive."

Khrushchev also renewed his long-standing demand for the United States to clear out of all its foreign military bases.

"If the cold war becomes hot," he said Friday, "the first blow will be struck against those countries which play host to U.S. bases."

He disclosed that Marshal Nedelin has direct authority to use nuclear warheads in rockets fired at bases in retaliation for any future spy flights.

"The choice of the weapon is within the competence of Soviet rocket troop commander Nedelin," he said. "He can find one suitable."

That statement, in reply to a question whether the order to retaliate against spy-plane bases included the use of nuclear weapons, was an elaboration of Defense Minister Rodion G. Malinovsky's strike-back order announced Monday.

Red Archives Open To U.S. Students

NEW YORK (AP) — The Soviet Union has opened its university research archives to United States graduate students, it was learned Friday.

The change in academic policy marks the first time since the start of the student exchange program between this country and the Soviet Union in 1953 that such archives have been unsealed for Americans.

A Columbia University professor said the switch resulted from a combination of pressure by American students, steady negotiations and a feeling of embarrassment on the part of Soviet scholars questioned on the matter.

United States insistence on access to the archives concerned scholarly purposes and has no political implications, said Prof. David C. Munford, as chairman of the Inter-university Committee on Travel Grants at Columbia, he traveled to Moscow last December to press negotiations.

The change in policy, which became evident during March and April, apparently lifts an obstacle that threatened to jeopardize the exchange program.

Munford explained that a number of other educational problems remain to be discussed when negotiations resume this month.

These include efforts to induce Soviet authorities to provide information on Soviet students before they come to the United States and to open the full range of Soviet institutions for Americans.

Davis Taking New Look At Vote Measure

same time putting it on the block for sale, Davis answered:

"The mansion is in pretty bad shape. It's full of roaches and needs exterminating."

He added quickly, "Let me say that the mansion was probably in as bad shape when I moved out before as it is today."

But he said if he could sell the mansion for a profit he thought the state should do so.

On the tidelands case, Davis explained that he had not talked to Dist. Atty. Leander H. Perez, Plaquemines Parish official who charged that the state mineral board had "sold Louisiana down the river."

KNOWS NOTHING

"I don't know anything about any secret survey," Davis stated.

Perez claims that the mineral board and U. S. Department of Interior are cooperating in a secret survey of Louisiana's coastal line, a survey that would beat the state out of oil revenues.

Davis declined to answer the charges that former Sen. W. M. Rainach of Summerfield hurled, accusing the governor of breaking campaign promises.

"That's a matter of opinion," Davis said. "But I don't care to comment."

Rainach quit the proposed sovereignty commission chiefly because Davis wouldn't exclude Atty. Gen. Jack Gremlion from the commission's legal staff.

"I think there was some sort of difference between Rainach and Gremlion," Davis exclaimed.

Two other major items brought up during the press conference were Davis' proposed $60-million bond issue and the creation of "advisory boards" to replace the so-called "blue ribbon" boards.

When asked if he thought the legislature would support the bond issue, Davis replied, "I think they see the need for it. I think they realize we don't have any capital outlay."

On the boards, the governor explained he wanted them because he felt the thinking of several persons was better than just having a departmental head.

"There are so many matters of opinion to be considered," he said.

Before the conference ended, Sen. Jackson B. Davis' right-to-work bill was mentioned and one reporter asked the governor if he would support it.

"Now," he answered, "I will not push it."

The session ended on a personal note. Davis told reporters he would meet the Thursday deadline for filing his personal income report with the state.

"I'll have to get my auditors to get that up and see if I can show anything," he said.

Asked if he had been singing lately, Davis answered, "I've made enough records to drive me three or four years. I'd like to go fishing but they'd say I was in Hollywood."

According to a standard hotel directory, the 30-man Louisiana delegation should find the lowest accommodations first - rate, if remote. The hotel is described as "unusually attractive" with a "quiet relaxing atmosphere."

Some rooms have patios. All guests have access to a heated swimming pool or to a Pacific Ocean beach a short walk away. No pets are allowed.

By contrast, delegations of neighboring states will be quartered in the downtown hotel area in Los Angeles, a five-minute taxi trip from the convention.

Texans will be in the new Clark Hotel and Arkansians in the Staller.

Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett made reservations for the state's delegates last winter on his own. Mississippi has paid the lowest percentage of its quota of any state.

Second lowest is South Carolina, which has paid 11.5 per cent of its $63,500 quota. Its delegation is booked at the Gates Hotel, also downtown, but described as somewhat older and less luxurious than the Santa Ynez Inn.

The Tennessee delegation will be in Pasadena, almost as far from Los Angeles, almost as far from the sports palace as the taxi trip from the convention.

Industrialist Asks Top Reds To Visit

BERLIN (UPI) — American elite countries "if the United States government would not invite them officially, I would be happy to be their host."

"Come and take a look at the United States, I told them," Eaton said. "I will be glad to be your host."

He added he did not know if the United States would grant them Visas.

The men Eaton invited was an impressive list of the Communist hierarchy in East Europe—East German Premier Otto Grotewohl, East German Communist Leader Walter Ulbricht, East Berlin Mayor Friedrich Ebert, Hungarian Premier Ferenc Jozsef Csernok, Polish Premier Jozsef Cyrankiewicz, Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka and Czech Premier Vladimir Siroky.

Eaton added:

"I was the first person to invite Khrushchev to the United States. At the time in 1953 there was quite a howl about it. John Foster Dulles opposed it because he said it would add to Khrushchev's prestige."

Some Americans here believe Khrushchev sees the possibility that his attacks on the U.S. administration will affect the November election. Friday, the Premier claimed Vice President Richard M. Nixon with back-handed praise.

"Now take Secretary Dulles," Khrushchev said at one point in a free-swinging news conference. "He did so many foolish things, that he made it easier for us. In that respect Nixon might be a good president for us."

It would be better, he said, "if we had a wise president—but if we don't we will get along."

Khrushchev called Eisenhower a weak and ineffective leader, "completely lacking in will power." The Soviet Premier said Eisenhower is unfit to "head a mighty nation" and that his term in the White House has been a dark and dangerous period in world affairs.

Khrushchev denounced Adenauer in terms so insulting they have not been heard from a Moscow forum for many a year. Adenauer, he said, belongs in a lunatic asylum.

These blasts were fired at a news conference called to explain Khrushchev's revision of his "general and complete" disarmament scheme launched before the U. N. last year.

Khrushchev said his new proposal is intended to lower world tension, allay international suspicion and permit an orderly liquidation of military forces.

Khrushchev also told his audience of 350 that the late John Foster Dulles, then Christian A. Herter as his successor as secretary of state, and finally Nixon, had drifted toward war.

If Eisenhower comes to the Soviet Union after he finishes his term in office, Khrushchev said, "the best job we could offer him here would be as head of a children's home. We are sure he would not harm children."

of the House Commerce Committee who stopped over at Honolulu's Royal Hawaiian Hotel in December 1957 while returning from an investigation of International Geophysical Year activities in Antarctica.

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark), Commerce Committee chairman, interrupted Flynt to second the Georgian's statements.

"The gentleman has given the House the true facts," Harris asserted, adding: "I think there is something behind this." He didn't amplify beyond saying the two reporters had spent a long time digging through House expense vouchers.

Harris, who also made the Honolulu stopover, has denounced the expense account stories as "a smear."

Another of the six, Rep. Samuel N. Friedel (D-Md), said the stories did not mention that he had paid all bar and personal expenses out of his own pocket.

Similarly Flynt, waving a canceled check at his colleagues, said he paid for everything that could be attributed to his personal use at the hotel. He said seven items adding up to $16.30 were listed on his bill and that he gave a personal check for $22.50 which more than paid for everything.

Flynt said the Washington Post article used only the first half of a photographed copy of his hotel bill. He said the other half would have shown that he had personally paid for the seven items charged against him.

Flynt said the authors of the article knew at the time they were writing it that he had made this payment.

know about the disease at the National Academy of Sciences this week at the second international conference on sarcoidosis.

Here are some of their conclusions:

—Sarcoidosis is worldwide. It afflicts four or five persons in every 10,000, although the number may be larger. Many persons are walking around with it now, unaware of what ails them.

—In the United States it is most prevalent among Negroes of the southeastern states, in Europe among Scandinavians. Women appear to be more susceptible to it than men. It is most common among young adults 20 to 30 years old.

—Perhaps 75 to 80 per cent of those afflicted with it recover completely. Among the remaining 20 to 25 per cent, disability may range from slight to total, with death the end of the line for those most seriously afflicted.

—In the United States sarcoidosis is certified as the cause of about 200 deaths a year. No figure is known for the rest of the world.

Solon Sees Offshore Oil Land Return

WASHINGTON (Special) — Sen. Russell B. Long said Friday Louisiana "has a chance" to win back its claim to tidelands oil royalties through congressional action.

He said, however, "We can't get it through this Congress. It will take hearings, it will take study, and it will take some time." Long added in a prepared radio speech that if a bill is introduced to restore the Louisiana title to the tidelands, states on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts may demand equal treatment. "I don't know how we can keep them out," he said.

NOT SURPRISED

The senator said he was not surprised at the Supreme Court's 5-2 decision last Tuesday which granted Texas and Florida the right to collect oil and gas royalties as far offshore as 10.5 miles but held the boundaries of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama to three miles.

More than $350 million in royalties and bonuses from drilling in the submerged strip between 3 and 10.5 miles off the Louisiana coast will revert to the federal treasury instead of the state of Louisiana under the court's decision.

The court's ruling was on language of the 1953 submerged lands act granting the gulf states title to offshore areas according to their "historic boundaries." The act left to the court the decision on where the boundaries were.

Long said "I admit that Texas and Florida had a much stronger case as far as proving that their boundaries went beyond three miles. Now... I think it is appropriate for us to introduce legislation and press for legislation to make some adjustments for the other states whose boundaries don't go that far into the sea."

"I would hope that Texas and Florida support us in that, to help see that we equalize the situation."

On another issue, Long said it was a "mistake" for the U.S. to admit it had any role in sending the U-2 spy plane over Russia, because it makes it impossible for other nations to cooperate with the U.S. on future espionage of this type.

Long, who attended recent hearings by the Senate Foreign Relations committee on the U-2 incident, said at least "we have a big asset in what we know about the Soviet Union that we wouldn't have known otherwise."

Davis Outlines Why He Wants Board Changes

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said yesterday he wants to replace the four constitutional boards because he wants to be able to keep an eye on them.

The main difference between the boards under existing law and the proposed setup, Davis told his news conference, is "we will be better able to supervise them." "I have always been opposed to overlapping boards," Davis said. No matter who is governor, he said, the governor has responsibility in the departments.

On other topics, the governor indicated Louisiana will have more to say in the tidelands dispute. He won't attend a legislative hearing on vote machine rigging, he doesn't want to sell the executive mansion unless the sale puts some profit into the general fund, and he is giving up any thoughts of abolishing the Legislature's 30-day fiscal session.

Plans Pushing Monroe Port Mapped Here

Intricate plans were drawn up Friday for securing port facilities for the Twin Cities, including a decision for a delegation of Ouachita Parish civic and business leaders to appear before the legislative appropriations committee within the next two weeks. The groundwork was laid at a joint meeting of Monroe city officials, Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and Mike John, Monroe Chamber of Commerce, members of the Greater Ouachita Port Authority and Rene Stiegler, retained special survey analyst of the State Department of Public Works.

Much of the discussion at the meeting, held at the Chamber of Commerce office, centered around obtaining $250,000 for purchase of land, capital improvements and operating expenses for the Greater Ouachita Port.

House calling for appropriations for this amount, but both indicated that the appropriations committee may be hard pressed in approving funds for the project. After reports by Gibbs and John, a discussion by Curtis Smith, chairman of the Greater Ouachita Port Authority on why a re-survey of river business here is needed, the group decided that their first plan of action would be to send a delegation to Baton Rouge to attempt to secure funds for the project. In the event this approach is not successful, the group is considering several other alternatives which will be made public when and if the necessity arises. Jim Williams, Chamber of Commerce manager, utilizing slides, vividly portrayed both through documentary photographs and sketches of existing facilities and potential advancement, the present condition along the Ouachita River front, Monroe expansion and possible plans of action.

Stiegler, stressing importance of a survey of facilities here plans to work with Williams to bring into focus how much water traffic is now engaged on the Ouachita, how much more may be expected if an adequate port is acquired. The planning also revolves around the proposed channel that would deepen the Ouachita River to a depth of nine feet. The group, heartened by action in Washington that may make the nine-foot channel a reality, set the wheels rolling toward making the Twin Cities a port connected with northern cities as well as the world. The meeting was presided over by Howard Griffin, chairman.

State Senator's Stand

Lamar W. Adcock, Monroe businessman and newly elected Louisiana state senator from the district composed of Ouachita and Jackson parishes, deserves commendation for the strong position he has taken in regard to attempts to abolish or hamstring the Monroe utilities commission.

The utilities commission has been outstandingly successful in reducing the city's indebtedness, has enabled the city to pay its bills when they come due and has been able to turn over to the city substantial sums at regular intervals for making needed improvements and expansions. This situation is far different from that which existed before the creation of the utilities commission. Dropping of the proposed changes, therefore, is gratifying.

Generally, the people of Monroe have appeared all along to be well pleased with the improvements realized under the utilities commission. They do not want a return to the conditions of near-insolvency that existed before the utilities commission was established.

Apparently some labor elements are disgruntled because some of the feather-bedding practices which they were allowed to impose under the previous setup have been eliminated.

Because the utilities commission is non-political, these labor elements can't put much pressure on it by threats of voting reprisals when certain phases of feather-bedding are eliminated.

As far as can be determined, this is the reason announcement was made that bills would be introduced in the legislature to undermine the utilities commission.

In contrast to positions taken by some other solons, Senator Adcock has stood firmly behind the utilities commission setup. As long as the people of Monroe and the city generally are in favor of the utilities commission, it would be out of place for the legislature to do anything to upset it.

Education Cost Figures

The Association of American Medical Schools has presented some interesting figures on the cost of educating medical students and on the sources from which this money comes.

In part, the association says:

"An integration of the data in figures I and II unequivocally demonstrates that lower income families simply cannot provide the amounts of money needed by the student to pay for the costs of his medical education.

"The data in figure II indicate clearly that there is a much smaller proportion of medical students from lower income families and, conversely, a much larger proportion of medical students from families $10,000 or more with the proportion of such families in the U.S. population."

It seems clear from the figures submitted by the association that the proportion of medical students among the lower-income groups would be far greater if some method of financing their education, other than through family assistance, were provided.

The figures do show that some students are capable of making their way through medical school without family assistance, chiefly by earning their own way, or with the benefit of some scholarships, but students must have a tremendous capacity for work and study, a determination to sacrifice everything else and an indomitable will to go on.

Continuing, the association said: "Data from . . . which discussed medical student finances indicated that the average cost to the student of four years of medical school, as experienced by the 1959 graduating class, was $11,612, or $2,911 per year. Recent findings in the same study indicate that the individual student and his family are paying the largest portion of these costs, with only minor assistance from outside agencies. Gifts and loans from parents, relatives and or in-laws and the student's or his wife's earnings provide 82 per cent of all financial resources available to the student. Agencies outside the family, such as the medical school, local banks, federal and state governments provide the remaining 18 per cent of financial resources."

Figures showed that 16 per cent received from $100 to $2,200 in family help, 23 per cent received $3,000 to $5,000, 19 per cent received $6,000 to $8,000, 13 per cent received $9,000 to $12,000 and four per cent received more than $12,000.

It is thus easy to see that the family income would have to be far above average to pay such sums as these, even if the family had only one child to educate, and usually there are more. Even in a good-income family most of the educational expenditure would have to be devoted to one member of the family. The idea of a medical education for any of them would have to be abandoned. For low-income families, the problem is almost insurmountable unless the student is able to earn most of his own way.

Only 14 per cent of the medical graduates came from families with income of less than $5,000, 38 per cent came from families with income of $5,000 to $9,999 and 43 per cent came from families with income of more than $10,000. On the other hand, 11 per cent of the U.S. white urban families had income of less than $5,000, 48 per cent had income between $5,000 and $9,999 and 11 per cent had income of more than $10,000.

Thus, we see that 43 per cent of the medical graduates came from the 11 per cent population which had earnings of $10,000 or more.

A somewhat similar situation would be found in regard to other skilled professions, although the difference would not be so marked, because the cost of education in many of the other skilled professions is not so great.

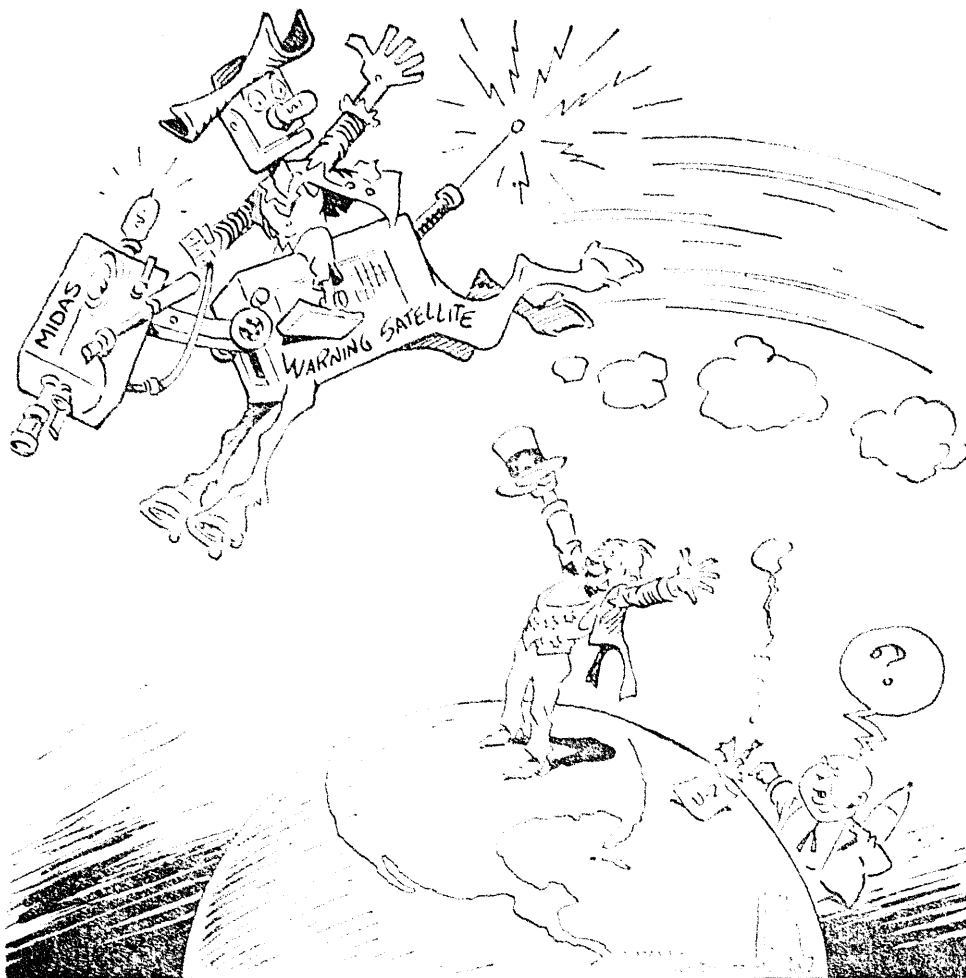

Undoubtedly, the high-income families have some more intellectual capabilities than the low-income families and they also have more ambition and more drive, but this would not account for all of the difference. A considerable part of the difference is caused by lack of money.

Bridging the difference between the low-income, middle-income and high-income people insofar as chance for medical study is concerned is an extremely difficult problem, but some solution seems desirable in view of the fact that the need for medical graduates is increasing rapidly.

The average American visits a physician just over five times a year, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

Overthrows In South Korea And Turkey Led By Youths: Results Of Such Actions Often Undesirable

It is not a new thing for students to get excited and make demonstrations. Sometimes they are wise, at other times they are foolish. In the case of the Korean student demonstrations, the latter was the case. The students, who were led by a few young men, forced out the government and installed a new government. The result was a chaotic situation and a civil war.

The student demonstrations in Turkey were also led by youths. They forced out the government and installed a new government. The result was a chaotic situation and a civil war.

The student demonstrations in the United States are also led by youths. They are often violent and destructive. They are a threat to the stability of the country.

and the ROTC. It is to be pointed out that much of this anti-American influence has flowed over into Student Unions.

One of the principal students who led the House Committee investigation of the University of California, Berkeley, was a Communist Party member. He was a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and was a member of the House Committee on Education and Labor.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Drab Year Seen

Both Republican And Democratic Conventions May Be Dull

This nation, which for generations has looked to the two major parties to provide stirring political Presidential nominating conventions, faces the possibility, maybe the probability, that both Democrats and Republicans will let it down this year.

With the Democratic National Convention, which meets first, less than six weeks away this is the outlook. The likelihood for a sizzler which the Democrats have seemed all along to offer, is not as promising as it was. There has been a slight but conditional improvement in the prospect that the Republican convention will not be the drab affair it seemed fated to be.

The forecasts have consistently been that the Democrats would have a multi-battle contest for the Presidential nomination, running at least ten ballots. Some party men even predicted that it might go as long as the 46 ballots it required to nominate Woodrow Wilson at Baltimore in 1912 or the 41 ballots required to name James M. Cox at San Francisco in 1920.

There have been some speculations recently that Senator John F. Kennedy might make the grade at Los Angeles on the first or second ballot, Governor Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey, gave voice to that feeling in a statement and urged the party to go slow and do some deliberating at Los Angeles. The Stevenson and Symington endorsements, so far, have not helped the prospect of a quick Kennedy nomination.

The Democrats are not yet out of the woods on a party-splitting platform fight, which could drive a number of Southern states either to nominate a third party ticket or free their electors. A straw in the wind to indicate how the South is thinking along this line was taken by the Virginia State Democratic Convention, which instructed its delegates at Los Angeles to vote for Senator Lyndon B. Johnson or Texas.

The Virginia convention also adjourned subject to being reconvened at the discretion of the State Democratic Central Committee. This is a stark warning to leave the way open for a State party to endorse some other candidate should the Los Angeles record be "unimpressive." Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana have machines to free their Presidential electors, without recommending their State conventions.

The Republican prospects are not so bright. tion of newspaper, television and radio audiences rest on the announcement was made after it appeared that Nixon already had amassed the necessary number of votes to win. As it is now Nixon could probably win an acclamation, but with its paucity of audience entertainment features the Republicans would think of omitting the sure-fire crowd-grabber a roll call is. State-by-state balloting would cast their votes for Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona and New York probably bestowing a complimentary vote upon Rockefeller, with switches giving the nomination to Nixon at the end of the ballot. Any call the GOP might attempt to force on Rockefeller would be as Nixon's Vice Presidential ticket mate, it now appears.

The Democratic convention arrangements committee let the Democrats down in the selection of a presiding officer at Los Angeles. There was not much muttering at the choice of Senator Frank Church as temporary chairman and keynote. The temporary chairman's departure has been spotlighted after his seynate and the short organization formalities.

It is the Permanent Chairman who presides and referees when the Platform fight is on and when both the Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees are to be balloted upon. There were loud groans when the announcement was made that Governor LeRoy Collins of Florida, a virtual unknown to the party, would be Permanent Chairman.

The Democrats have a great tradition in convention permanent chairman. There will be a handful of delegates at Los Angeles who sat in on the two conventions over which Senator Olin James of Kentucky presided. Since James, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas presided over three conventions. Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana wielded the gavel at the turbulent Madison Square Garden convention at New York in 1924 and at Chicago in 1932. And there are delegates to those conventions who still believe that but for the respect in which Walsh was held there would have been no such thing as a Democratic National Convention.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, although permanent chairman only once, three times more was temporary chairman and then spelled the permanent chairman as a sort of co-chairman. Speaker Sam Rayburn of the House of Representatives has spelled as permanent chairman the Democratic National Convention.

Throbbing Heart

Pulse-Taking Rather Than Poll-Taking Seen As Vote Gauge

WASHINGTON, D. C. — On the theory that pulse-taking rather than poll-taking is the way to gauge elections in this country, there are those matters which might upset the national heartbeat in reference to important elections.

Chicago Not Dead? It is often said of Senator Stephen Symington that his every mannerism gives the impression that he's not here, but that he's somewhere else. But matters are only the outward expression of good will and good feeling, and the other way, Symington showed that these gentlemanly traits are not merely on the surface.

With Adlai Stevenson not around to defend himself, Minority Leader Dickson, on the Senate floor, let go an attack on the titular head of the Democratic party by citing a French language interview which seemed to show Stevenson as an apocryphal Senator Jack Kennedy came and a similar holding of soft on-fires insinuations — and nobody on the floor was protesting more than Symington.

Al Symington had to do was sit still and keep quiet while his rivals for the Democratic nomination, Stevenson and Kennedy, were getting their bumps.

But instead — up at Symington with some documentary records. He took both his rivals to the horns of the angry minority leader. Later, I asked Symington why he would do such an impractical thing as that in a campaign season. His explanation was simple but self-sufficient.

"They were a couple of friends of mine, and they seemed to me to be taking their own party. The Indestructible Atom. Most defeated Presidential candidates first fade away. Stevenson seems to be taking longer than usual, but Thomas Dewey is hardly in the public eye at all, and Al Landon's recent photograph with Mrs. Roosevelt and Norman Thomas caused many to wonder if the 1956 GOP loser hadn't returned from Another World."

But it Richard Nixon doesn't become the next very much in public affairs, Nixon has said that whenever he leaves politics, he will work at making some real money for his young family. This is no doubt his intention, but Nixon is far too valuable for any Administration to let slip through its fingers. A Rockefeller Administration could not find a better piece of seasoned Cabinet material anywhere. Curiously, Nixon has warmer friends among the Democratic candidates than he has among his intransigent rivals of the GOP. The Vice President served in the House with Kennedy and Johnson, two ex-presidential campaign managers who would never willingly let the Vice President escape from the commonwealth of American Government.

The Light and the Bushel. Throbbing leaders believe that Nixon is injured by President Eisenhower's fading image as a peacemaker, are glad enough to have Governor Rockefeller as a draft-hair for the GOP nomination. He has made an excellent Governor to date, but his reputation as a Republican New Dealer has not been borne out in one important respect.

Unlike most political liberals, Rockefeller is willing to run a Welfare State — but only if the people will pay — as they go in taxes. He has shown a willingness to be unpopular. It is necessary, to remain fiscally chaste and sound.

But Rockefeller's upstage act in declining to consider the Vice Presidential post and his threats to boycott the Convention are risky investments that may pay off in ill-will. True, in 1960 the Republicans need Rockefeller — but by 1964 some rising Republicans, like Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Congressman Bruce Alger of Dallas, Texas, Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, will be of Presidential timber. The man from New York who hides his light under a bushel may not find the GOP swooning with the same affection

15 DAYS IN WRECKAGE

Boy, 9, Recovers After Rough Time

FLIN FLON, Man. (AP)—A 9-year-old boy found beside the wreckage of a plane where he had spent 15 days alone pepped up Friday on a liquid diet in a Flin Flon hospital. He had lived off roots, leaves and rain water. Veterans of the Canadian bush were amazed that he survived.

A helicopter Thursday plucked Walter Sedor from beside the burned wreckage, 39 miles north of Winnipeg. Later, the helicopter returned to get the bodies of his father, Steve Sedor, 39, and pilot Ken Harrison, 32, killed May 18.

"Gee, I thought you'd never come," Walter told his mother at the hospital.

Chance resulted in Walter's discovery 12 miles northeast of this northern Manitoba mining town. Pilot Harry Evans of Transair Ltd. took off from Flin Flon on a flight which took him over an area thoroughly searched from the air since the light plane disappeared.

Evans' passenger, construction worker Fred Sedor, asked where the plane had been headed when it disappeared.

"I realized I was over Taran Lake at the time," said Evans. "So I looked out and started to say that the lake was right down there."

"I never finished because directly below me I saw the skeleton framework of an aircraft. I banked sharply to get a better look and then my heart missed a beat."

"Below me on a flat rock surrounded by bushes was a small boy frantically waving his arms and shouting."

Rough Diseases Include Waste And Laziness

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—America's most dangerous diseases, a newspaper executive said Friday night, are "idleness, laziness, featherbedding, waste, the tendency to try to get the most and give the least."

Richard E. Berlin, president of the Hearst Corp., delivered the commencement address at Seattle University, where he received an honorary doctor of laws degree. The university also awarded such an honorary degree to Sister Mary Emil of Detroit, Mich., for her work in religious education in the Roman Catholic Church.

A citation accompanying Berlin's degree noted that he rose from a $25-a-week magazine salesman's job to vice presidency of a magazine chain in 10 years; then went on to head the publishing corporation.

It commended him "for his demonstration of the needed and repeated ideal of success through ability, for his responsible leadership in the important communications field, for his distinguished service to his church and fellow man."

"Some young men who come to see me about jobs these days," Berlin said, "often ask about fringe benefits, about how much vacation they will get with pay, about what their chances are to advance by seniority. I cannot help but feel that these young men lack confidence in themselves."

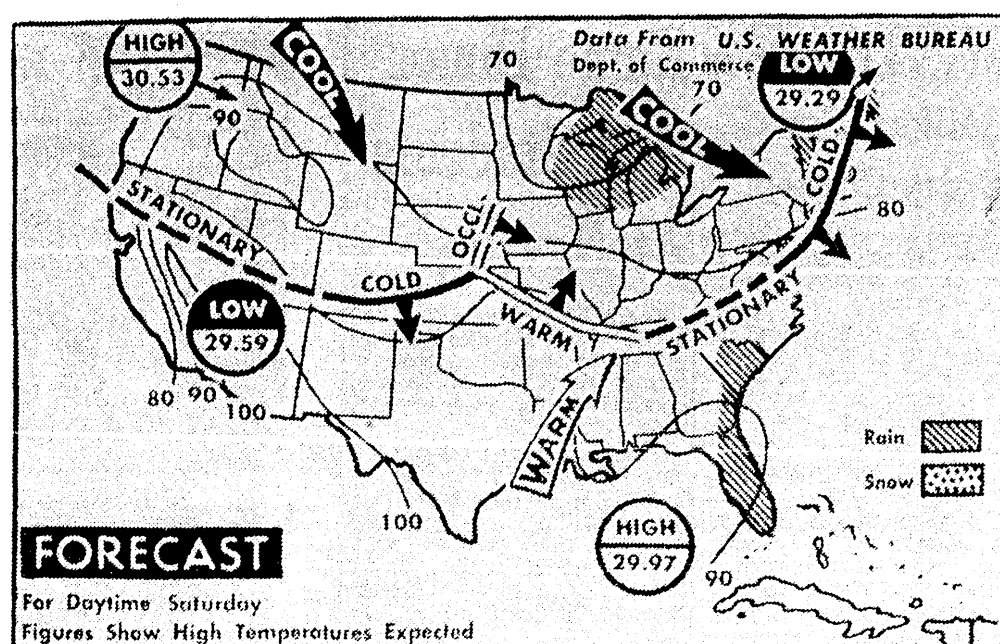

In emphasizing importance of individual initiative, Berlin said he did not intend "any reflection on the unions for the gains they have achieved for the working man and woman."

Berlin said he is glad these are difficult times "because it is in such times that it is possible to discover real ability and real talent."

Khrushchev's Statement On Germany Denied

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's statement that President Eisenhower told him the United States fears a reunified Germany was denounced by the White House Friday as "absolutely untrue."

Anne Wheaton, associated press secretary, said she assumed Eisenhower and Khrushchev had discussed the problem of bringing East and West Germany back together when they met last September but said: "The chairman's alleged summary of the conversation is absolutely untrue."

Four African Members Ask Independence

PARIS (AP)—Four African members of the 12-nation French African Community asked Friday for full independence but promised to retain close ties with France.

The four—the Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Niger and Upper Volta—probably will remain within the community.

At the same time, President Charles de Gaulle told representatives of the Community meeting here that it will continue through perhaps in an altered form.

"If the Community is going to take a new form, I do not believe that the spirit or value of this great institution must be altered," De Gaulle said. "In principle it is the organization for cooperation among our states. It will be, I believe, the same tomorrow."

De Gaulle, who created the community of semi-autonomous states out of what was formerly the French African empire, already has approved independence for Senegal, Sudan and Madagascar. The remaining members of the Community—Mauritania, Gabon, Chad and the Central African Republic—are expected to follow suit in the near future.

The French Senate Thursday night adopted a constitutional amendment that will permit fully independent states to remain in the community. The amendment paves the way for a commonwealth-type arrangement between France and the African states of the Community. Senegal, Sudan and Madagascar have expressed a desire to remain with the community.

Emergency State Ordered In N. Y. Town

ALBION, N.Y. (AP)—A state of emergency was declared in this Orleans County village Friday after gasoline was detected in sanitation and storm sewers.

Five flash fires broke out within a two-hour period. Firemen said the fires were caused by igniting gasoline fumes. The damage, which was confined to basements, was minor.

William H. Murray, county civil defense director, said nearly 400 persons were asked to leave their homes when the gasoline was discovered. He said the families later returned to their homes, but were asked to avoid cooking and smoking.

Mayor James Robinson declared the state of emergency after the fifth fire was reported.

Murray said civil defense crews had joined firemen to flush the storm and sanitation sewers.

The source of the gasoline seepage was not immediately determined.

One Of Three High School Students Smoke

LOS ANGELES (AP)—About one of every three high school students is a regular cigarette smoker, and "teen-agers today are starting to smoke at an earlier age than their older brothers and sisters," the American Cancer Society's board of directors was told Friday.

The study was based on a nationwide survey of 4,320 high school students by Eugene Gilbert & Co., a private youth survey organization.

Results were described by Dr. Daniel Horn, the society's director of program evaluation and co-author of the Hammond-Horn study which, the society said, "helped establish a cause-and-effect relationship between lung cancer and smoking."

"In both the male and female groups, a surprising fact is noted," the report said. "The freshmen outnumber the seniors among those who have been smoking for 2½ to 3 years."

"Also, more freshmen than seniors are cited as having been smoking for five years or more. Of 1,197 students classified as regular smokers, 28.9 per cent smoke 5 to 9 cigarettes a day; 24.3 per cent, 14 cigarettes a day. Thirty-eight per cent of boys and 29 per cent of girls smoke."

Set Deadline

Committee OK's Lake Providence Port Measure

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special)—The Senate public works committee yesterday approved an omnibus bill which includes provision for access to the Mississippi River for a port here, according to a telegram from Senator Russell Long and Senator Allen J. Ellender.

The wire from the Louisiana senators said that the measure had received committee approval and would be reported to the senate later in the week.

The bill provides for a port authority here and $150,000 annually to keep the port navigable.

O. S. Brown, publisher of the Banner Democrat, a weekly Lake Providence newspaper, received the wire.

House Group Approves Cut Medical Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Ways & Means Committee Friday approved a trimmed-down program of government-subsidized medical care for 1,500,000 persons over 65 who would need help to pay their hospital bills.

The 340-million dollar program falls far short of both President Eisenhower's proposal and a rival plan sponsored by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-R.I.). Both would benefit about 12-million of the 16-million Americans over 65.

The committee approved its program after rejecting, 17-8, the labor-backed Forand plan to add medical insurance to Social Security benefits. The committee proposal is expected to be considered by the House on a take-it-or-leave-it basis barring amendments.

LSU Engineer Has Perfect Point Average

DERIDDER (Special)—Warren Smith, 26-year-old LSU mechanical engineering major from Deridder, has joined the ranks of a small, highly select group of students who have been graduated from LSU with perfect scholastic records.

Smith has made straight A's in 120 hours of scholastic work at LSU, giving him a perfect 3.0 average.

Upon entering LSU in the summer of 1957, Smith had 92 hours of course work taken at Southwestern Louisiana Institute, very little of which was applicable to an engineering degree.

While at SLI, he was a music major and played the cello, baritone horn and trombone. His wife, Geraldine, received her music education degree from SLI and her master's degree from the University of Texas.

In the fall the Smiths, with their three children, Cindy, 4 years old, Mark, 2, and Russell, 1, will move to California where Warren will study for his master's degree in aeronautical engineering at the California Institute of Technology. He recently received a graduate scholarship from the National Science Foundation.

Smith was named outstanding graduating senior in science and in April was named top graduating senior in the college of engineering.

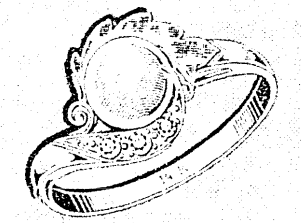

Before Smith the most recent student to graduate with a perfect average was Arthur J. Slav-in, who received his degree in history in 1958. Four previous students have achieved the high honor in the university's 100-year history.

15 DAYS IN WRECKAGE

Boy, 9, Recovers After Rough Time

FLIN FLON, Man. (AP)—A 9-year-old boy found beside the wreckage of a plane where he had spent 15 days alone pepped up Friday on a liquid diet in a Flin Flon hospital. He had lived off roots, leaves and rain water. Veterans of the Canadian bush were amazed that he survived.

A helicopter Thursday plucked Walter Sedor from beside the burned wreckage, 39 miles north-west of Winnipeg. Later, the helicopter returned to get the bodies of his father, Steve Sedor, 39, and pilot Ken Harrison, 32, killed May 18.

"Gee, I thought you'd never come," Walter told his mother at the hospital.

Chance resulted in Walter's discovery 12 miles northeast of this northern Manitoba mining town. Pilot Harry Evans of Transair Ltd. took off from Flin Flon on a flight which took him over an area thoroughly searched from the air since the light plane disappeared.

Evans' passenger, construction worker Fred Saga, asked where the plane had been headed when it disappeared.

"I realized I was over Tartan Lake at the time," said Evans, "so I looked out and started to say that the lake was right down there."

"I never finished because directly below me I saw the skeleton framework of an aircraft. I banked sharply to get a better look and then my heart missed a beat."

"Below me on a flat rock surrounded by bush was a small boy frantically waving his arms and jumping up and down. It was the greatest experience of my life when I suddenly realized I had found the missing plane and the boy was alive."

Evans said that if he had been 10 yards to either side of his course he would not have seen the boy or the wreckage.

He said he realized the number of disappointments Walter must have had the past two weeks as he tried to attract search planes, so he flew so low over the lad, he could see the flowers on his sweater.

The sweater, and other heavy clothing, helped protect him from the cold and mosquitoes.

Walter was believed to have been sitting in the back seat when the plane rammed into the rock-strewn terrain among the scrubby trees. He apparently went through the roof.

Rescuers said he was nearly incoherent from exhaustion and hunger when found. He did not know that a package containing enough food for 25 days had been thrown clear of the wreckage.

Transportation Affected As Japanese Riot

TOKYO (AP)—Left-wing demonstrators blocked transportation Saturday in a new protest against the U.S.-Japan security treaty and President Eisenhower's visit.

Railway union members filled and surrounded trains to prevent them from moving. At Shinagawa, the major railway terminal for industrial Japan, not a train left the yard in the first hour of the scheduled two-hour work stoppage.

About 5,000 radical Zengakuren students and left-wing unionists jammed the station entrances. Loudspeakers boomed out such statements as: "Today's demonstration is intended to prevent war. Workers are demonstrating not for ourselves but on behalf of all the Japanese people."

The demonstrators are demanding the resignation of Premier Nobusuke Kishi, scrapping of the new security treaty and the calling off of Eisenhower's June visit.

The work stoppage involved not only the government-owned national railway system but private local train networks as well.

Only subways were reported operating as scheduled.

Rough Diseases Include Waste And Laziness

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—America's most dangerous diseases, a newspaper executive said Friday night, are "idleness, laziness, featherbedding, waste, the tendency to try to get the most and give the least."

Richard E. Berlin, president of the Hearst Corp., delivered the commencement address at Seattle University, where he received an honorary doctor of laws degree.

The university also awarded such an honorary degree to Sister Mary Emil of Detroit, Mich., for her work in religious education in the Roman Catholic Church.

A citation accompanying Berlin's degree noted that he rose from a $25-a-week magazine salesman's job to vice presidency of a magazine chain in 10 years; then went on to head the publishing corporation.

It commended him "for his demonstration of the needed and repeated ideal of success through ability, for his responsible leadership in the important communications field, for his distinguished service to his church and fellow man."

"Some young men who come to see me about jobs these days," Berlin said, "often ask about fringe benefits, about how much vacation they will get with pay, about what their chances are to advance by seniority. I cannot help but feel that these young men lack confidence in themselves."

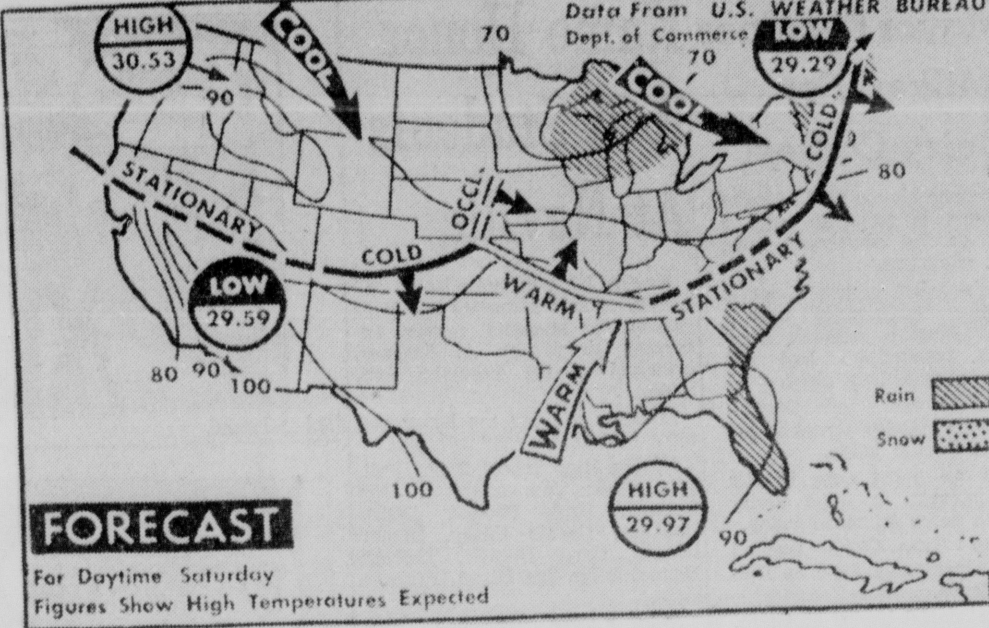

In emphasizing importance of individual initiative, Berlin said he did not intend "any reflection on the unions for the gains they have achieved for the working man and woman."

Berlin said he is glad these are difficult times "because it is in such times that it is possible to discover real ability and real talent."

Khrushchev's Statement On Germany Denied

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's statement that President Eisenhower told him the United States fears a reunified Germany was denounced by the White House Friday as "absolutely untrue."

Anne Wheaton, associated press secretary, said she assumed Eisenhower and Khrushchev had discussed the problem of bringing East and West Germany back together when they met last September but said: "The chairman's alleged summary of the conversation is absolutely untrue."

SHOWERS AND WIDELY scattered thundershowers are on tap for today over New England and South Atlantic area, while showers are due for Great Lakes region. Temperatures should be somewhat cooler over middle Atlantic states, northern Pacific region and northern Rockies. Warm weather is indicated for much of Southeast and over southern Plateau area. Four African Members Ask Independence

PARIS (AP)—Four African members of the 12-nation French African Community asked Friday for full independence but promised to retain close ties with France.

The four—the Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Niger and Upper Volta—probably will remain within the community.

At the same time, President Charles de Gaulle told representatives of the Community meeting here that it will continue through perhaps in an altered form.

"If the Community is going to take a new form, I do not believe that the spirit or value of this great institution must be altered," De Gaulle said. "In principle it is the organization for cooperation among our states. It will be, I believe, the same tomorrow."

De Gaulle, who created the community of semi-autonomous states out of what was formerly the French African empire, already has approved independence for Senegal, Sudan and Madagascar. The remaining members of the Community—Mauritania, Gabon, Chad and the Central African Republic—are expected to follow suit in the near future.

The French Senate Thursday night adopted a constitutional amendment that will permit fully independent states to remain in the community. The amendment paves the way for a commonwealth-type arrangement between France and the African states of the Community. Senegal, Sudan and Madagascar have expressed a desire to remain with the community.

Emergency State Ordered In N. Y. Town

ALBION, N.Y. (AP)—A state of emergency was declared in this Orleans County village Friday after gasoline was detected in sanitation and storm sewers.

Five flash fires broke out within a two-hour period. Firemen said the fires were caused by igniting gasoline fumes. The damage, which was confined to basements, was minor.

William H. Murray, county civil defense director, said nearly 400 persons were asked to leave their homes when the gasoline was discovered. He said the families later returned to their homes, but were asked to avoid cooking and smoking.

Mayor James Robinson declared the state of emergency after the fifth fire was reported.

Murray said civil defense crews had joined firemen to flush the storm and sanitation sewers.

The source of the gasoline seepage was not immediately determined.

One Of Three High School Students Smoke

LOS ANGELES (AP)—About one of every three high school students is a regular cigarette smoker, and "teen-agers today are starting to smoke at an earlier age than their older brothers and sisters," the American Cancer Society's board of directors was told Friday.

The study was based on a nationwide survey of 4,320 high school students by Eugene Gilbert & Co., a private youth survey organization.

Results were described by Dr. Daniel Horn, the society's director of program evaluation and co-author of the Hammond-Horn study which, the society said, "helped establish a cause-and-effect relationship between lung cancer and smoking."

"In both the male and female groups, a surprising fact is noted," the report said. "The freshmen outnumber the seniors among those who have been smoking for 2½ to 3 years."

"Also, more freshmen than seniors are cited as having been smoking for five years or more."

Of 1,197 students classified as regular smokers, 23.9 per cent smoke 5 to 9 cigarettes a day; 24.3 per cent, 1-4 cigarettes a day. Thirty-eight per cent of boys and 29 per cent of girls smoke.

Committee OK's Lake Providence Port Measure

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special)—The Senate public works committee yesterday approved an omnibus bill which includes provision for access to the Mississippi River for a port here, according to a telegram from Senator Russell Long and Senator Allen J. Ellender.

The wire from the Louisiana senators said that the measure had received committee approval and would be reported to the senate later in the week.

The bill provides for a port authority here and $150,000 annually to keep the port navigable.

O. S. Brown, publisher of the Banner Democrat, a weekly Lake Providence newspaper, received the wire.

House Group Approves Cut Medical Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Ways & Means Committee Friday approved a trimmed-down program of government-subsidized medical care for 1,500,000 persons over 65 who would need help to pay their hospital bills.

The 340-million dollar program falls far short of both President Eisenhower's proposal and a rival plan sponsored by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-R.I.). Both would benefit about 12 million of the 16-million Americans over 65.

The committee approved its program after rejecting, 17-8, the labor-backed Forand plan to add medical insurance to Social Security benefits. The committee proposal is expected to be considered by the House on a take-it or leave-it basis barring amendments.

Upon entering LSU in the summer of 1957, Smith had 92 hours of course work taken at Southwestern Louisiana Institute, very little of which was applicable to an engineering degree.

The need for lights and reflectors on bicycles was cited by Chief James C. Kelly Jr., of the Monroe Police Department, yesterday afternoon, as the solution to a night traffic hazard in the Twin Cities.

Deadline For Filing Passes
For District

Incumbents for the positions of judges, district attorney and U. S. Representative appeared Friday headed for another term in office as the 5 p.m. deadline passed with no opposition candidates qualifying.

Fred Fudickar, district Democratic Executive Committee chairman, said he had received no filings for posts held by Fourth District Judges David I. Garrett Sr. and Jesse Heard; Fifth District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter and Rep. Otto E. Passman.

Fudickar said, however, "there is an outside chance" that filings for these offices may be received and accepted through the mail if postmarked before the deadline.

In Ouachita school board races, things were different with two incumbents and another candidate qualifying.

Incumbents James H. Trousdale Jr. and George Roray, Ward 10 board members qualified Friday.

Also qualifying was Standard Sweet for the Ward 9 post. He faces M. H. Head, incumbent, and Dwight E. Owens.

Aspirants to the school board, City judgeships and marshals for Monroe and West Monroe have until 5 p.m. Monday to qualify.

Monroe Budget
Action Delayed

Action on the proposed Monroe budget for 1960-61 was postponed Friday in observance of Confederate Memorial Day.

The City Council has set 10 a.m. Monday as time for meeting on the budget, which includes estimated receipts of $3,056,489, expenditures of $2,748,796.27 and surplus of $307,692.73.

The surplus is earmarked for use on the Plum Street underpass, sewers, garbage, control tower at Selman Field and recreation.

Officials at their meeting Friday observed a silent minute of prayer, paid tribute to the southern states and their "cause, especially in the present day predicament," and then adjourned.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

READER REACTION

A Chicago housewife writes: "There is one problem you haven't driven across to the public — that no antibiotic will cure a virus infection. There are so many people with flu or colds who home remedy themselves with sulfa and antibiotics, especially left overs. Tell them that viruses are different from bacteria, which can be eliminated with the wonder drugs."

It is true that only a few viral diseases respond to the sulfonamides or antibiotics. One is psittacosis (parrot fever), which is treated with tetracycline or aureomycin. Lymphogranuloma, another viral infection, responds to the sulfonamides or to the antibiotics (aureomycin, chloramphenicol).

I agree there is no rationale for the use of penicillin or erythromycin in treating most viral diseases, unless the remedies are used to prevent complications. In defense of the physician, we must add that bacteria cause many respiratory infections that mimic ordinary colds. The strep throat is one and sinusitis due to staphylococci is another. These conditions are common and respond to the sulfonamides and antibiotics.

"Our physician thinks my wife is going to have triplets. Please tell me how often this occurs so that I can do a little scientific bragging at work," writes T.M.

According to the Statistical Bulletin of Metropolitan Life, twins occurred once in every 95 confinements, triplets once in about 11,000, and quadruplets about once in every 900,000 confinements during the seven year period, 1951-1957. Why not have quads and really have something to brag about?

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Railroad Engineers Gain Funds

CHICAGO (UPI)—A government arbitration board Friday granted railroad engineers a 4 per cent, two-step pay increase and wrote 17 cents an hour in cost-of-living allowances into their basic pay structure.

The six-man board's award, final and binding on both sides, also junked the cost-of-living escalator clause in the existing contract between the carriers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The award was the first settlement of nationwide wage disputes involving the nation's railroads and 21 unions of operating (on-train) and non-operating (off-train) employees.

It meant pay boosts for more than 30,000 locomotive engineers and could set a pattern for settlement of disputes involving 300,000 other on-train employees—firemen, trainmen and conductors.

Friday's award, made unanimously by the board, provided: —Incorporation of cost-of-living allowances in effect May 1 into the existing basic pay rates.

—A 2 per cent basic pay increase July 1.

—An additional 2 per cent increase effective March 1, 1961.

—Corresponding percentage increases in all miscellaneous rates, special allowances, monthly and daily guarantees.

Cancellation of the cost-of-living adjustment provisions now contained in agreements between carriers and the BLE.

—No other pay raises or cuts before Nov. 1, 1961.

Railroad spokesmen said the two-step increase would average out to about 11 1/2 cents an hour.

Theodore Short, spokesman for three carriers' conference committees, said the award would cost the railroads $13,863,800 per year in added wages for the engineers.

If its terms were applied to all employees in the industry, he said, it would cost the carriers $106,576,432 per year.

In Cleveland, Ohio, Grand Chief Engineer Guy L. Brown of the BLE said he was "very happy" with the award. Brown figured that two-step wage increase, together with cost-of-living adjustments received May 1 and last Nov. 1, will give the engineers 5 1/2 per cent boost over what they were receiving when the old contracts became reopenable Nov. 1.

PROTECTION FROM DOGS

Mrs. O. W. writes: I'm allergic to dogs. Is there anything I can take before going to visit friends who have these pets?

REPLY
It would be easier to have your friends visit you. Allergic reactions occur when the scales or dander of animal hairs are inhaled. A mask over the nose and mouth may help filter out these particles but conversation would be difficult. Using a capsule or pill containing an antihistaminic drug or cortisone will help minimize the reaction but these drugs may cause side effects that would hardly make the visit worthwhile.

WART REMOVAL

E. T. writes: What is done for a venereal wart?

REPLY
A 10 per cent podophyllum resin in compound tincture of benzoin is a satisfactory remedy. This caustic must be applied carefully to avoid irritation and is not a "do-it-yourself" procedure. In some instances the lesion is removed by electrodesiccation.

HEART AND VARICOSE VEINS

Mrs. T. writes: Do varicose veins on the legs weaken the heart?

REPLY
No. There are many other veins in the area that take care of the needs of the heart. The legs suffer, however, because local circulation is impaired.

DROPPED STOMACH

S. T. writes: What causes the stomach to drop?

REPLY
The stomach droops on standing. X-rays show that some stomachs extend into the pelvis without causing the slightest trouble. Gastric distress cannot be blamed on this condition.

The six-man board's award, final and binding on both sides, also junked the cost-of-living escalator clause in the existing contract between the carriers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The award was the first settlement of nationwide wage disputes involving the nation's railroads and 21 unions of operating (on-train) and non-operating (off-train) employees.

In Cleveland, Ohio, Grand Chief Engineer Guy L. Brown of the BLE said he was "very happy" with the award. Senators Dump Baltimore, 4 To 1 With 11-Hit Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hal Woodeshick, pitching his first complete game in the American League since 1958, checked first place Baltimore on five hits Friday night as Washington downed the Orioles 4-1 before 11,668 fans.

Bob Allison paced the Senators' 11-hit attack with a triple and homer and knocked three runs as the Senators dumped Baltimore's three-game winning streak.

Tagged with the loss was Mil

Woodeshick had the Birds hitting his sinkers and sliders into the dirt. He fanned six and only two outfield putouts were registered by the Senators, including a running one-handed grab of Marv Breeding's drive by center fielder Lenny Green to end the game.

The Senators, en route to their third straight victory, jumped in to a 1-0 lead in the first on a walk to Billy Gardner and Allison's three-bagger.

After two walks and a single by Jackie Brandt tied it for Baltimore in the third, the Senators led it with three runs in the fourth. Joe Valdivielso singled and rode home on a double by Paye Throneberry. Allison's fifth homer capped the rally.

CLAIMS INNOCENCE

Meyer Threatens Appeal To Frick

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pitcher Jack Meyer is considering hiring a lawyer and carrying to the baseball commissioner's office his fight against an estimated $1,200 fine levied by the Philadelphia Phillies.

Meyer was fined Thursday for participating in a roughhouse or horseplay in a Pittsburgh hotel room Saturday night. The pitcher suffered a herniated disc and is in the hospital.

"I'm not going to stand for it," asserted an incensed Meyer from his hospital room.

"I wasn't to blame," he said Friday night that the impact of the huge fine—15 days pay—had been to dawn on him. "It looks like nobody took the trouble to find out what actually happened."

Meyer said he would hire a lawyer and appeal to Commissioner Ford Frick unless the Phillies fully investigate circumstances surrounding the incident. The pitcher said he had been willing to accept full responsibility but that the fine has changed his mind.

"What do they think I am," Meyer asked, "a millionaire?"

Meyer, who has won 3 and lost 1 this year since being taken from the bullpen by Manager Gene Mauch and made a starting pitcher, said he asked General Manager John Quinn if he knew what happened.

According to Meyer, Quinn replied, "Only what you told Mauch in the clubhouse at Pittsburgh last Sunday."

Meyer said he remembers informing Mauch he had been drinking and became involved in an argument with two Philadelphia baseball writers and a sports writer in a Pittsburgh restaurant before being calmed by teammate Harry Anderson.

Meyer said he told the manager that he later retired to his room and then decided to renew the argument with the writers and radio man and had to be restrained by roommate Anderson. In the scuffle, he said he hurt his back and damaged a radio in the room.

But that wasn't the true story, he said today. "I was ready to take the rap for the whole thing. But how can I now? This time makes a big difference. It's unfair. After all, I've got a wife and four children to support."

Meyer's story now is that after the exchange of words in the restaurant he went to his room and was sound asleep when one of his Phillies teammates entered the room and dumped cold water on him.

"I thought some of the guys (players) who were involved would go to Quinn or Mauch and tell them what happened," Meyer said. "But apparently they didn't. So I don't see why I should be the goat."

The 28-year-old Meyer said he hurt his back before the team went to Pittsburgh. "I felt it get worse when I pitched in Cincinnati a couple of weeks ago (May 11) and I told Mauch about it then."

Odessa Wins Junior College Links Crown

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — Odessa College again won both individual and team titles in the second annual National Junior College Golf Tournament which ended Friday.

Danny Swain beat Charles Meisner on the third hole of a sudden-death playoff after both Odessa players finished at 267 for the individual championship.

Swain teamed with Jerry Cosby, another Odessa player, to win the two-man team crown with a 581 total for the 72 holes. Meisner and Melvin Chisum finished second at 587.

Bill Parkas of Phoenix (Ariz.) College placed third in the individual standings by winning the second hole of a playoff from George Powell of Weatherford (Tex.) College. Both carded 290 for 72 holes.

Third in the team standings were Dick and Dan Murphy, twins from Texasarkana College, with 591. Parkas and Todd Cypert of Phoenix were fourth at 594. Those were the only teams to better 600.

Sharp Patterson Avoids Sparring

NEWTOWN, Conn. (AP) — Floyd Patterson, already sharp and at 192 close to the weight he expects to carry for his title re-match with heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson, June 20, eliminated sparring from his Mauch explained the fine was 15 days pay which at an estimated $14,000 a year for a 30-month season amounts to about $1,200. Meyer has been placed on the disabled list which keeps him off the roster for 30 days.

After learning of the fine, Meyer asked Quinn and clubowner Bob Carpenter for his release. He threatened to quit baseball.

Mauch, informed of this, asserted, "I don't think much of his attitude. I should think he'd buck up and say, 'Wait until I get back. I'll get that fine back.'"

Mauch said he thought Meyer is a problem. Do you think any manager wants to take a problem off his hands, I know they don't.

LIMITS PLAYER DRAFT

Compromise Bill Offered By Solon

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.) Friday offered a compromise proposal that would limit the unrestricted baseball player draft envisioned by professional sports bills.

Hart's proposal was discussed by the Senate Judiciary Committee, but a vote was postponed at least until next week.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), author of the sports bill, said Hart's amendment was acceptable to him. Kefauver said it reasonably met objections of big league club owners. Also, he said he understood it is satisfactory to the Continental League, the third major league being organized.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), who has differed with Kefauver on the sports issue in the past, said Hart's amendment would improve the bill "very much indeed." But Keating said he felt the proposal required further study, so he asked for and was granted a delay in a vote.

"I want to be sure nothing is done that would destroy the structure of baseball or hurt the fans," Keating said.

One of the key provisions in the Kefauver bill would make subject to an unrestricted draft all baseball players over a limit of 40 to each major league club.

Hart's amendment provides that this shall not apply to any player now under contract until he has completed four years in organized baseball.

But players signed up after passage of the legislation would be subject to draft if not on the 40-player roster of a major league team.

The major league club owners have protested that the unrestricted draft provided for in Kefauver's bill would amount to confiscation of their property, because of their investment in ball players.

Hart's amendment is designed to meet this objection and yet break up what Kefauver and others have called a monopoly of ball players by the major league teams.

The new move was made in a bid to clear the way for action on Kefauver's bill which would provide limited exemption from the anti-trust laws for professional baseball, football, hockey and basketball.

But with Congress hoping to wind up its session early next month, it appeared unlikely the sports bill—even if it clears the Judiciary Committee—would get through the Senate before adjournment.

After Perry retired the next two batters, Bruce and Eddie Yost hit consecutive singles, with Beberet scoring on Yost's hit to center field. Sandy Amoros batted for Frank Bolling and walked, filling the bases. Perry then walked.

Charlie Maxwell to force in a run and was replaced by Kippstein, who struck out Al Kaline to end the fourth inning by Bob Bruce.

Cleveland added two more runs in the fifth on Aspromonte's home run over the left field fence. It was his first homer of the season and scored Perry, who had singled to right field.

Perry blanked the Tigers until the seventh, when they scored two runs and sent the young right-hander to the showers. Lou Berberet opened the inning with a walk.

PIRATES CONTINUE CLIMB

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A collision by two Philadelphia players chasing a fly ball in the third inning enabled Pittsburgh pitcher Vernon Law to score the only run he needed to gain his eighth triumph in nine decisions Friday night as he shut out the Phillies 3-0.

It was the sixth consecutive victory for the league-leading Pirates and their 16th in their last 21 games.

Two were chasing a short fly ball hit by Rocky Nelson near the foul line.

Law got on base to open the inning when Bobby DeGrego dropped a fly ball. Don Hoak walked. Dick Groat sacrificed and Bob Skinner was intentionally walked to fill the bases. Nelson lifted the ball and Curry charged into Koppe trying to field it. Law scored on the play.

Curry was carried off the field and given oxygen in the dressing room. Koppe was able to leave with the help of several players.

When play resumed Roberto Clemente singled to right scoring Hoak and Skinner but Nelson, trying for third was out. Smoky Burgess managed a single but Gino Cimoli struck out.

The Phillies loaded the bases in the seventh on singles by Ken Walters, Alvin Dark and Clay Dalrymple but were unable to score.

John Buzhardt was charged with the loss, his fourth in five decisions. He and Dick Farrell allowed the Pirates eight hits, the same number Law gave up to the Phillies.

FIVE HITTER

Senators Dump Baltimore, 4 To 1 With 11-Hit Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hal Woodeshick, pitching his first complete game in the American League since 1958, checked first place Baltimore on five hits Friday night as Washington downed the Orioles 4-1 before 11,668 fans.

Bob Allison paced the Senators' 11-hit attack with a triple and homer and knocked three runs as the Senators topped Baltimore's three-game winning streak.

Tagged with the loss was Milt Pappas, who had beaten Washington six straight times since August 10, 1958.

The defeat reduced Baltimore's hold on first place to a game and a half as the second-place Cleveland Indians whipped Detroit, 6-2.

CLAIMS INNOCENCE

Meyer Threatens Appeal To Frick

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pitcher Jack Meyer is considering hiring a lawyer and carrying to the baseball commissioner's office his fight against an estimated $120,000 fine levied by the Philadelphia Phillies.

Meyer was fined Thursday for participating in a roughhouse or horseplay in a Pittsburgh hotel room Saturday night. The pitcher suffered a herniated disc and is in the hospital.

"I'm not going to stand for it," asserted an incensed Meyer from his hospital room.

"I wasn't to blame," he said Friday night that the impact of the huge fine—15 days pay—began to dawn on him. "It looks like nobody took the trouble to find out what actually happened."

Meyer said he would hire a lawyer and appeal to Commissioner Ford Frick unless the Phillies fully investigate circumstances surrounding the incident. The pitcher said he had been willing to accept full responsibility but that the fine has changed his mind.

"What do they think I am," Meyer asked, "a millionaire?"

Meyer, who has won 3 and lost 1 this year since being taken from the bullpen by Manager Gene Mauch and made a starting pitcher, said he asked General Manager John Quinn if he knew what happened.

According to Meyer, Quinn replied, "Only what you told Mauch in the clubhouse at Pittsburgh last Sunday."

Meyer said he remembers informing Mauch he had been drinking and became involved in an argument with two Philadelphia baseball writers and a sports editor in a Pittsburgh restaurant before being calmed by teammate Harry Anderson.

Meyer said he told the manager that he later retired to his room and then decided to renew the argument with the writers and radio man and had to be restrained by roommate Anderson. In the scuffle, he said he hurt his back and damaged a radio in the room.

"But that wasn't the true story," he said today. "I was ready to take the rap for the whole thing. But how can I now? This fine makes a big difference. It's unfair. After all, I've got a wife and four children to support."

Meyer's story now is that after the exchange of words in the restaurant he went to his room and was sound asleep when one of his Phillies teammates entered the room and dumped cold water on him.

"I thought some of the guys (players) who were involved would go to Quinn or Mauch and tell them what happened," Meyer said. "But apparently they didn't. So I don't see why I should be the goat."

The 28-year-old Meyer said he hurt his back before the team went to Pittsburgh. "I felt it get number when I pitched in Cincinnati a couple of weeks ago (May 14) and I told Mauch about it then."

LIMITS PLAYER DRAFT

Compromise Bill Offered By Solon

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.) Friday offered a compromise proposal that would limit the unrestricted baseball player draft envisioned by professional sports bills.

Hart's proposal was discussed by the Senate Judiciary Committee, but a vote was postponed at least until next week.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), author of the sports bill, said Hart's amendment was acceptable to him. Kefauver said it reasonably met objections of big league club owners. Also, he said he understood it is satisfactory to the Continental League, the third major league being organized.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), who has drafted with Kefauver on the sports issue in the past, said Hart's amendment would improve the bill "very much indeed." But Keating said he felt the proposal required further study, so he asked for and was granted a delay in a vote.

"I want to be sure nothing is done that would destroy the structure of baseball or hurt the fans," Keating said.

One of the key provisions in the Kefauver bill would make subject to an unrestricted draft all baseball players over a limit of 40 to each major league club.

Hart's amendment provides that this shall not apply to any player now under contract until he has completed four years in organized baseball.

But players signed up after passage of the legislation would be subject to draft if not on the 40-player roster of a major league team.

The major league club owners have protested that the unrestricted draft provided for in Kefauver's bill would amount to confiscation of their property, because of their investment in ball players.

Hart's amendment is designed to meet this objection and yet break up what Kefauver and others have called a monopoly of ball players by the major league teams.

The new move was made in a bid to clear the way for action on Kefauver's bill which would provide limited exemption from the anti-trust laws for professional baseball, football, hockey and basketball.

But with Congress hoping to wind up its session early next month, it appeared unlikely the sports bill—even if it clears the Judiciary Committee—would get through the Senate before adjournment.

Tribe Takes 6-2 Decision Over Detroit

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ken Aspromonte hit a home run and two singles and drove in three runs Friday night to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 6-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the opener of a four-game series.

The winner was starter Jim Perry, who needed relief help in the seventh inning after he lost his control and forced in a run with a bases-loaded walk. Johnny Klippstein finished up, retiring the seven men he faced in order.

The win was Perry's fourth straight and gave him a 5-2 record.

Detroit starter Frank Lary, who lasted only three innings, was the loser and now is 4-5.

Lary retired the Indians in order in the first two innings, but the Tribe got to him for four runs on five singles and a stolen base in the third. He was replaced in the fourth inning by Bob Bruce.

Cleveland added two more runs in the fifth on Aspromonte's home run over the left field fence. It was his first homer of the season and scored Perry, who had singled to right field.

Perry blanked the Tigers until the seventh, when they scored two runs and sent the young right-hander to the showers. Lou Berberet opened the inning with a walk.

After Perry retired the next two batters, Bruce and Eddie Yost hit consecutive singles, with Berberet scoring on Yost's hit to center field. Sandy Amoros batted for Frank Bolling and walked, filling the bases. Perry then walked Charlie Maxwell to force in a run and was replaced by Klippstein, who struck out Al Kaline to end the rally.

Odessa Wins Junior College Links Crown

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — Odessa College again won both individual and team titles in the second annual National Junior College Golf Tournament which ended Friday.

Danny Swain beat Charles Meisner on the third hole of a sudden-death playoff after both Odessa players finished at 287 for the individual championship.

Swain teamed with Jerry Cosby, another Odessa player, to win the two-man team crown with a 581 total for the 72 holes. Meisner and Melvin Chisum finished second at 587.

Bill Farkas of Phoenix (Ariz.) College placed third in the individual standings by shooting the second hole of a playoff from George Powell of Weatherford (Tex.) College. Both carded 290 for 72 holes.

Third in the team standings were Dick and Dan Murphy, twins from Texarkana College, with 591. Farkas and Todd Cyfert of Phoenix were fourth at 594. Those were the only teams to better 600.

Sharp Patterson Avoids Sparring

NEWTOWN, Conn. (AP) — Floyd Patterson, already sharp and at 192 close to the weight he expects to carry for his title rematch with heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson, June 20, eliminated sparring from his Woodeshick had the Birds hitting his sinners and sliders into the dirt. He fanned six and only two outfield putouts were registered by the Senators, including a running one-handed grab of Marv Breeding's drive by center fielder Lenny Green to end the game.

The Senators, en route to their third straight victory, jumped into a 1-0 lead in the first on a walk to Billy Gardner and Allison's three-bagger.

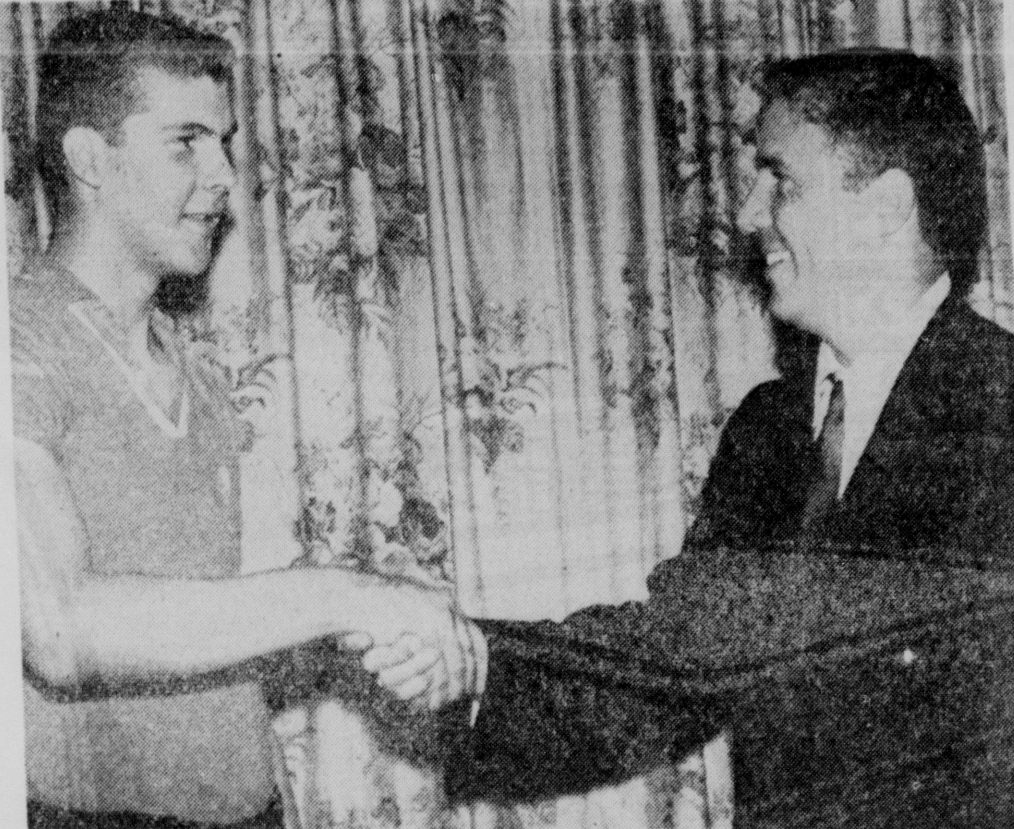

After two walks and a single by Jackie Brandt tied it for Baltimore in the third, the Senators iced it with three runs in the fourth. Joe Valdivielso singled and rode home on a double by Faye Throneberry. Allison's fifth homer capped the rally.

Law Blanks Phillies, 3-0, To Record Eighth Victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A collision by two Philadelphia players chasing a fly ball in the third inning enabled Pittsburgh pitcher Vernon Law to score the eighth triumph in nine games.

Law got on base to open the inning when Bobby DelGreco dropped a fly ball. Don Hoak walked. Dick Groat sacrificed and Bob Skinner was intentionally walked to fill the bases. Nelson lifted the ball and Curry charged into Koppe trying to field it. Law scoring on the play.

Curry was carried off the field and given oxygen in the dressing room. Koppe was able to leave with the help of several players.

When play resumed Roberto Clemente singled to right center, Hoak and Skinner hit Nelson, trying for third was out. Smoky Burgess managed a single but Gino Cimoli struck out.

The Phillies loaded the bases in the seventh on singles by Ken Walters, Alvin Dark and Clay Dalrymple but were unable to score.

John Buzhardt was charged with the loss, his fourth in five decisions. He and Dick Farrell allowed the Pirates eight hits, the same number Law gave up to the Phillies.

WITH FOUR HOMERS

Milwaukee Tops Redlegs, 6 To 4

By DAVE O'HARA
MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves erupted with a barrage of four homers then survived another case of late inning jitters Friday night for a 6-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Hank Aaron, Del Crandall, Billy Bruton and Johnny Logan each connected for circuit shots as the Braves jumped on Cincinnati starter Jay Hook for all their runs in the first four innings.

Milwaukee right-hander Carl Willey baffled the Reds for eight innings, striking out seven and allowing only three hits, but then needed help from Don McMahon in the ninth.

The Braves, who have been blowing sizeable leads in the late innings, received another big scare when the Reds erupted for three runs in the final frame on a single by Gus Bell, a fielder's choice, Jerry Lynch's double and Ed Bailey's fifth homer. McMahon then came on the put down the uprising.

The only damaging blow off Willey in the early innings was Frank Robinson's 10th homer in the second.

The Braves quickly tied the count when Aaron belted Hook's first delivery in the bottom of the second into the left field bleachers for his 11th homer.

Crandall launched the third with his eighth homer and Bruton belted his second one out later.

Logan, benched because of weak hitting, got his chance when Felix Mantilla suffered a bruised hand and had to retire after three innings. The veteran shortstop proceeded to lead off the fourth with his first homer and first run batted in since April 27.

The Braves' other two runs came after Bruton's homer in the third. Red Schoendienst punched a single to right and Eddie Mathews walked. After Aaron fouled out, Joe Adcock smacked a wicked shot to left, scoring Schoendienst.

White Wants To Get Back Into Baseball

BOSTON, (AP) — Sammy White is getting the urge to return to baseball.

But the former Boston Red Sox catcher won't consider ending his retirement before next season, he told the Boston Globe.

White's sudden retirement from the heels of a similar move by Jackie Jensen completed the one-two blow which helped start the Red Sox on the skids toward the American League cellar.

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't want to play baseball again," White said. "If things are going smoothly next year, I'd like to play. I don't care if it's Boston, Cleveland or elsewhere."

White's retirement came suddenly this spring after he was traded to Cleveland for catcher Russ Nixon. White quit baseball rather than be traded, explaining that he was about to take part in the start of a major bowling venture in Boston.

The bowling center is due to open in late August.

UNUSUAL RECORD
LOUISVILLE (AP) — By running second to Venetian Way in the Kentucky Derby, Bally Ache at least maintained his unusual record. The Edgemoor Farm bay colt has finished in the money in 23 straight races. His only out-of-the-money race was his first start Feb. 19, 1959 when he ran sixth to Niqueget at Hialeah Park.

Minor League
Jack Armstrong got the most possible mileage out of only one hit, outrunning Discount Center, 10-9. Times got the only hit off loser Ellerby, Wright, the winner, also was touched for only one base hit, a safety to R. Davis. D. Warlick and D. Fragala collected two hits apiece to spark Kellogg Lumber to an 18-6 decision over Hi-12. Warlick gave up only two hits in pitching the win. Harvour and Landers was the losing battery.

Bruce Terminix downed Mahr Poulter, 6-4, in another game that produced only two hits. Moore of the winners and Francis of the losers matched one-hitters.

Sandy Amoros, fielding star of the 1953 Dodgers in the World Series against the Yankees, was waived out of the National League and traded to Detroit.

Turley Pitches 4-3 Yankee Win

NEW YORK (AP) — One-time ace Bob Turley needed relief help, but gained his first victory as a starting pitcher since last August Friday night as the New York Yankees defeated Boston and troublesome Jerry Casale 4-3.

A three-run third inning, with one run scoring on a passed ball and the clincher coming home on a wild pitch, did it for the Yankees, who had lost three in a row. It also hung a fourth straight defeat on Casale (2-4), whose only two victories were over New York.

The young right-hander had won three in a row from the Yankees since last August 11.

Turley, now 2-1, had a two-hit shutout for 6 1-3 innings, then gave up a walk to Pumpsie Green and a home run by pinch hitter Rip Repulski. It was Repulski's second American League home run, both pinch shots.

Turley left in the eighth after giving up his fifth walk and a double by Gene Stephens. Frank Malzone brought in a run with a sacrifice fly off reliever Johnny James, but southpaw Bobby Shantz then came on and retired pinch hitter Ted Williams on a fly to right.

That saved Turley's first victory over the Red Sox in five decisions since opening day of last season.

The big third got rolling with two out, when Mickey Mantle walked and Roger Maris followed with a single. A passed ball by catcher Ed Sadowski scored Mantle and Yogi Berra then tripled, scoring Maris. Berra came in on the wild pitch.

The Yankees got their first run in the second inning on consecutive singles by Bill Skowron, Tony Kubek and Cletis Boyer.

Fans Riot As Griffith Wins Split Decision

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's Emil Griffith Friday night gained a split decision over Argentina's Jorge Fernandez in a bruising 10-round television fight at St. Nicholas Arena.

A storm of boos greeted the verdict. Three chairs were thrown into the ring and many of the 1,261 fans stomped the floor and whistled in derision of the decision. Some angry fans splintered chairs against the balcony facade, to the cheers of others.

Special police went into the balcony to restore order. The hollering and screaming went on for more than 10 minutes.

Referee Peter Della and Judge Jack Gordon each had Griffith the winner by 5-4-1 scores. Judge Joe Agnello had Fernandez ahead 6-4. The AP card had Fernandez in front 5-4-1.

A quick poll of the ring side showed three writers had Fernandez ahead, one had Griffith in front and two had it even.

The defeat snapped Fernandez' victory streak at five and made him even for two fights in the United States. His record is 63-41. Griffith's record now is 18-2.

Fernandez weighed 147 1/4, Griffith 147 1/2.

It was a bristling close fight all the way with little to choose between the two. Griffith had the better of the first half of the free-swinging battle. But the harder hitting Argentine finished stronger.

There were no knockdowns although each was spun to the floor once. Fernandez staggered his foe three times, twice in a big fourth round.

Ike's Grandson Hits 2, Boots 2

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Moose defeated the Rotary, 8-3, in a Little League game here Thursday night and two of the winners' runs were batted in by 123-pound second baseman David Eisenhower, grandson of the President.

Young Eisenhower was playing his first game for the Moose.

First time up David singled to left center to drive in a run. Second time up he struck out. Third time up he again drove a single to left for another RBI.

Defensively, David collected his team's only two errors—one on a bad throw to first, the other on a bad throw to shortstop on an attempted force play.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Bridge Fiend Rude, Don't Play With Her

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: How do you, and went home with a sick head, tell a sensitive fellow that you don't love him and don't care to learn? Phil grew up with me. He's a fine guy, but more like a brother than a boy friend. We've gone out together many times but there was no romance between us. In fact, he has never kissed me. You can imagine how shocked I was when he asked me to marry him.

I had to be honest and tell him I'd never thought of him in that way. He began to cry and it made me feel just awful. He offered to build a lovely home and said he'd devote his life to making me "happy" to love him. When he left I was a wreck.

He wants to continue to see me but I think this would be wrong on my part. My mother said to write to you. I am 21. Phil is 23.

—AN ALSO ANN

Dear Ann, Too! It's obvious the relationship lacks that certain magic ingredient. If, after years of dating, the friendship did not catch fire it never will.

It would be a mistake to continue to date Phil. Tell him that since you know he's thinking in terms of a wife, you can't go out with him again.

A girl who marries a fellow because he cries and she feels sorry for him, winds up crying and feeling sorry for herself—for many years to come.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently Jane was invited to fill in as a substitute in our bridge club. I drew her for my partner.

Jane is a very good player and she should be because that's all she ever does. I made a small mistake in the bidding of the first hand, and we went set. She gave me a dagger-like look and said, "If you had the brains of an ox you would have played that hand in another suit and we'd have made it."

I was so nervous after that I made several more serious errors.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Pros And Cons Of Being Only Child

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It is easy to read quickly and have the opportunity — more often than children in a large family — of being spoiled. We go back and check to see if it is just what you think it is and usual.

One of my recent columns dealt with spoiled children and in it I said that "One" of the groups of children who could easily be spoiled were the "onlies." Isn't that true?

That doesn't mean that every only child is spoiled, nor does it mean that the extra attention an only child gets is always bad for him.

Nor does it mean that an only doesn't have other disadvantages with which to contend. But any one who knows anything about children should willingly admit that it is "easier" for an only child to be spoiled than for one of several children.

The mother has more time to wait upon the child, to fulfill his desires (money is an item here, too) and therefore the child finds it easier and easier to ask for more and more demands — which end up in his being what we call a spoiled child. That is, a child who thinks the family owes him whatever he may happen to want.

While on the subject of the only child, may I say, too, that only children garner benefits that children from large families may be denied. The only child is in the company of adults more often than children in a large family.

The habits of adults, the conversation of adults, all become familiar to the only child and this can be broadening, since it makes the child more aware of the problems of an adult world.

A child's talents and skills get more attention, since everything he does or says is wonderful and exciting to the parent. These talents and skills get developed, largely because the parent feels pride in them and also because with one child the money for such development may be available. If this were a poor family with several children, it might not be.

So we are not stammering only children when we say that they have the opportunity — more often than children in a large family — of being spoiled. We are just noting what is obvious and usual.

Oppose Vote Qualify Bill

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The League of Women Voters, through its legislative action committee, said yesterday it opposes the administration bill to tighten voter qualifications.

Mrs. John T. Clarke, legislative chairman, said the group met yesterday to determine its views on various bills.

Miss Rentz, Mr. Johnson Wed In Lake Providence

Floor baskets of white gladioli, stock and fern graced the chancel while tall candles burned in the ivy entwined candelabra at the First Baptist Church in Lake Providence for the wedding of Miss Carolyn Rentz and Dale Robert Johnson.

Their vows were exchanged in the presence of the Reverend Douglas Cheatham, at five on the afternoon of Saturday, May 21.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alexander Rentz of Lake Providence and Mr. Johnson's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Johnson of Land O'Lakes, Wisconsin.

Mrs. D. Q. Madden was organist for the nuptial music, traditional wedding marches, and accompanist for Mrs. H. H. Moorman, who sang "One Alone," and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of delft blue Italian silk linen with scoop neckline, three-quarter length sleeves, and deep matching lace midriff to band the full gathered skirt. Her veil was of veiling over stiff net encircled with small blue flowers and buds. She carried a colonial bouquet of stephanotis and lace with narrow shower streamers of white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Marvin Ragland served as matron of honor and only attendant. Her champagne batiste gown was scattered with blue floral sprays. From her matching demi-hat fell a short veil. She added short white gloves and single strand of pearls and carried an old fashioned bouquet of white roses in a cache of white lace and pink satin ribbon.

Marvin R. Ragland served the bridegroom as his best man. Ushers and candlelighters were Lawrence Hill Tingley and Binford Pitts.

Immediately following the church ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Rentz were hosts at a reception at the Legion Home on Bayou Tensas.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Rentz chose a Bikini blue linen with a white chiffon sweep banding embellished with a blue ribbon motif, simulated pearls and rhinestones circling the shoulders at a scoop neckline. Her hat was of blue bows and grape clusters on green leaves. Her shoulder corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Binford Pitts invited the guests to register in the bride's book, and during the hours of the reception Mrs. D. Q. Madden and Mrs. H. H. Moorman alternated at the piano to render musical numbers.

Mrs. Billy Herrington and Mrs. George Hopkins presided at the silver punch bowls at each end of the refreshment table overlaid with a Mexican drawwork cloth and centered with a low arrangement of white stock, carnations and gladioli. Miss Ida May Cobb, aunt of the bride, cut and served the three-tiered wedding cake, with each tier supported by fluted Grecian columns and topped with a miniature bride and groom standing in front of a wedding bell trimmed with marble and lily of the valley. Tea girls were Misses Mary Lou Grossman, Gayle Grossman and Amanda Proctor.

For the wedding trip the bride chose a two-piece ensemble of light Copenhagen blue banded at the waistline with contrasting shades which were repeated on the wing collar of the short jacket. She wore a corsage of stephanotis from her bridal bouquet. After the wedding trip Mr. and

YOUR PROBLEMS

Bridge Fiend Rude, Don't Play With Her

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: How do you tell a sensitive fellow that you don't love him and don't care to learn?

Phil grew up with me. He's a fine guy, but more like a brother than a boy friend. We've gone out together many times but there was no romance between us. In fact, he has never kissed me. You can imagine how shocked I was when he asked me to marry him. I had to be honest and tell him I'd never thought of him in that way. He began to cry and it made me feel just awful. He offered to build a lovely home and said he'd devote his life to making me "Learn" to love him. When he left I was a wreck.

He wants to continue to see me but I think this would be wrong on my part. My mother said to write to you. I am 21. Phil is 23. —AN ALSO ANN

Dear Ann, Too: It's obvious the relationship lacks that certain magic ingredient. If, after years of dating, the friendship did not catch fire it never will.

It would be a mistake to continue to date Phil. Tell him that since you know he's thinking in terms of a wife, you can't go out with him again.

A girl who marries a fellow because he cries and she feels sorry for him, winds up crying and feeling sorry for herself—for many years to come.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently Jane was invited to fill in as a substitute in our bridge club. I drew her for my partner.

Jane is a very good player and she should be—because that's all she ever does. I made a small mistake in the bidding of the first hand, and we went set. She gave me a dagger-like look and said, "If you had the brains of an ox you would have played that hand in another suit and we'd have made it."

I was so nervous after that I made several more serious errors.

and went home with a sick headache.

Would I be justified in bringing this up at our next meeting and ask that Jane be ruled out as a substitute? —BETTY

Dear Betty: Don't put yourself in this unattractive position. Simply state that you will not be Jane's partner in the future if she's a substitute.

If she "is" invited (it's usually the hostess's prerogative) Jane will probably give some of the other girls a headache and be excluded by unanimous consent.

Dear Ann: I just found out my real dad died the year I was born. Mom married a nice man a couple of years later. He has been a good father to me. I have two little brothers, 8 and 10 years of age. I am 12. They don't know we have different fathers.

Many friends and relatives must know but I don't think they'd ever tell. Should I tell my brothers now or wait till they are older? I'm sure it won't make any difference in their feeling for me as we love each other very much. —AKRON

Dear Akron: Tell your mother what you know, and suggest she tell your brothers before they learn it elsewhere—as you did.

This sort of information never makes any difference when it is told early and by the proper person. It's only when it comes from an outsider that it can produce shock.

Mayor Snider Said Improved

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special)—Mayor Roy Snider of Delhi was in an "improved condition" Friday, according to his wife.

Mrs. Snider said doctors told the family Snider had shown a "slight improvement" after suffering a heart attack in the capitol Wednesday.

Snider is hospitalized in Our Lady of the Lake Hospital near the capitol. He was stricken while appearing before a committee in behalf of the Louisiana Municipal Association.

Snider, LMA President, will be hospitalized here for at least several more days, according to Mrs. Snider.

New Officers Installed

Twelve new officers of the Navy Mothers' Club of the Twin Cities were installed at the American Legion Home Thursday evening, Chief W. C. Chotz, petty officer in charge at the local Navy Recruiting Station, assisted by Mrs. Fred Dupree, installed the following: commander, Mrs. W. O. Windham; first vice commander, Mrs. Martin Schempf; second vice commander, Mrs. E. C. Cobb; adjutant, Mrs. R. A. Coleman; assistant adjutant, Mrs. A. B. Johnston; finance officer, Mrs. W. B. Lueg; and chaplain, Mrs. Cloy McLeLand.

Judge advocate, Mrs. Paul Barefoot; color bearers, Mrs. H. W. Shepard and Mrs. R. L. Wilson; and matrons at arms, Mrs. Ruby Elkins and Mrs. Oscar Hampton. Mrs. Aline Baanister was elected to the board of directors and Mrs. Mary Peters to the board of trustees.

Outgoing commander, Mrs. R. A. Coleman, was presented the past commander's pin and Mrs. W. O. Windham received the incoming commander's pin.

Clyde L. Pohl presented a new fifty star flag to the club in behalf of the Ouachita Valley Camp Number 18 of the Woodmen of the World. Mrs. R. L. Wilson, a past commander, received the flag.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Pros And Cons Of Being Only Child

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It is easy to read quickly and get a wrong idea, and when your hackles rise at it you forget to go back and check to see if it said exactly what you think it did.

One of my recent columns dealt with spoiled children and in it I said that "One" of the groups of children who could easily be spoiled were the "onlies." Isn't that true?

That doesn't mean that every only child is spoiled, nor does it mean that the extra attention an only child gets is always bad for him.

Nor does it mean that an only doesn't have other disadvantages with which to contend. But any one who knows anything about children should willingly admit that it is "Easier" for an only child to be spoiled than for one of several children.

The mother has more time to wait upon the child, to fulfill his desires (money is an item here, too) and therefore the child finds it easier and easier to ask for more and more favors, make more and more demands—which end up in his being what we call a spoiled child. That is, a child who thinks the family owes him whatever he may happen to want.

While on the subject of the only child, may I say, too, that only children garner benefits that children from large families may be denied. The only child is in the company of adults more often than children in a large family.

The habits of adults, the conversation of adults, all become familiar to the only child and this can be broadening, since it makes the child more aware of the problems of an adult world.

A child's talents and skills get more attention, since everything he does or says is wonderful and exciting to the parent. These talents and skills get developed, largely because the parent feels pride in them and also because with one child the money for such development may be available. If this were a poor family with several children, it might not be.

So we are not slandering only children when we say that they

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Newspapers might check the most authoritative report on the capture of Adolph Eichmann, former SS colonel. Although early dispatches said he was grabbed in Kuwait, and later rumors from Vienna claimed the Nazi butcher was found in Argentina, there's every reason to believe he was security agents helped by three kidnaped in Cairo, almost under British subjects — one of them a Dictator Nasser's nose. The he-woman. The trio of Britishers were not undercover agents, just ordinary citizens who believed they were carrying out a moral duty. The big mystery: How did two Israeli security officers slip into Cairo?

Kay Starr is being wooed by wealthy Jerry Nathanson. Chums think he has a good chance of winning her hand. . . Tony Williams, for years the lead singer with the Platters, has left the livenessome to try his luck as a solo act. . . Shubert Alley isn't the only theatrical area inundated by troubled waters at the moment. All the legitimate theatres in Paris are threatening to close down in a protest against prices — but in this instance, the French actors' union and the theatre managers are in complete agreement.

Desi Arnaz wanted to visit his native Cuba and try to help U. S. - Cuban relations by conferring with Fidel Castro. But State Department aides, in off - the - record conversations advised against it, telling Desi the Castro government might easily find a way of turning his patriotic gesture into an anti-American "incident."

One of Park Ave.'s most fascinating untold tales stars a foreign beauty who has just wrecked the marriage of a popular society couple. The elegant - looking foreigner hit New York quite a few years ago, passed herself off as a doctor and graduate of a famed university, and was often seen with United Nations figures and prominent members of the international set although she was working as a $100 call girl and selling her charms for bangles and furs. One newspaperman recalls that when he first encountered her she described herself as "a medical student at Columbia University." Next time he saw her — quite a long time later, she gave him the same story. "That would have made her a medical student at Columbia for about 10 years," he says. Anyway, her flair for drama has paid off. She's scored a major triumph.

Tin Pan Alley's biggest battle in years looms in the New York State Supreme Court — Octave Music vs. Bregman, Vocco and Conn. It's a hassle over Erroll Garner's lovely tune, "Misty" . . . The table cards at Ciro's, where Lisa Kirk is starring, carry this credit: "Act written, produced and married by Bob Wells" . . . A friend of Ted Williams quotes him as maintaining: "There's no truth to the reports that I'll manage the Red Sox. All I want to do is finish out the season and break the 50 home run mark. This is all the ambition I have in baseball."

The ad line for the Kirk Douglas - Kim Novak flicker, "Strangers When We Meet," will delight the moralists. It's "the love story of two people who are married, but not to each other."

Sharon Sheeley, the 20-year-old song writer who was injured in the English auto crash that killed her fiancé, rock 'n' roll singer Eddie Cochran, is still in St. Martin's Hospital, Bath, recuperating from the accident. She's written a ballad about Eddie, titled "To Love and Be Loved" . . . Relax, everybody; there's a Society for the Prevention of World War Three located at 515 Madison Ave.

What's Martha Raye up to — the party of the year? The Hotel Chelsea in Atlantic City reports she reserved the entire ninth floor for the holiday weekend, and requested the services of a staff of waiters and chambermaids around the clock. . . Anita Ekberg's "real" romance in Rome is more interesting than the publicized ones that actually didn't count. . . Frankie Hyers, who used to be a comedian with Jackie Gleason at the old Club

18, is now working as a bartender in Miami Beach.

Choreographer Joe Layton has dropped his scheduled job at the Spoleto Festival. There's no official version of what happened to change his mind. . . Let the astrologers figure out this one: Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, currently engaged in battling on the floor of the United Nations, have the same birthday — July 5.

Polly Bergen will make headlines on the fashion pages when she announces her new affiliation with an established dress concern. It's not just an endorsement deal — she'll be involved with the designing, manufacturing and merchandising of the clothes, which will mean a severe curtailment of her activities in show business. . . Some of the boys around Lindy's have figured out why Joe Louis signed with Fidel Castro: he wants to get on the Jack Paar Show!

Accused

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —Yugoslavia Friday accused Red China of "giving direct aid to most reactionary adherents of the cold war in the present world."

War Criminal Is Cooperating With Police

TEL AVIA (UPI)—Adolf Eichmann, awaiting trial in Israel as a Nazi war criminal, is cooperating fully with Israeli police in recalling details of his career as the man who exterminated 6,000,000 Jews, it was reported Friday.

Cmdr. Abraham Selinger, head of the police bureau gathering information and evidence for the prosecution, said he was spending an average of two hours a day with Eichmann. During the questioning, he said, when obscure points arose Eichmann cooperated fully in clarifying them.

He told a press conference the former SS (Nazi elite corps) colonel had been given pencil and paper at his own request to record his career but he declined to describe Eichmann's notes as a "confession."

Selinger said the account, written chronologically, now has reached the mid-war years when the deaths camps for Jews and "other undesirable persons" were in full operation.

Selinger told questioners Eichmann had not requested defense counsel but he hedged when asked to state whether the former Nazi extermination camp boss had been told he was entitled to the assistance of a lawyer.

Selinger also declined to answer when pressed on the point if Eichmann was warned that the material he has been writing might be used as evidence against him.

He would not venture a guess why Eichmann was cooperating so readily with the Israeli police investigators but said there were precedents at Nuremberg, including Rudolf Hess, the one-time

Informal sources said the government was expected to deny that Eichmann was nabbed by secret agents in Argentina as reported in many newspapers throughout the world.

Oil Activity

In April Runs

Some Lower

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana oil activities in April ran generally lower than in the month a year ago, the Conservation Department reported Friday.

Drilling permits totaled 349, compared with 417 in April last year, and well completions totaled 283, compared with 343.

Of the April completions, 191 were producers, 157 of oil and 37 of gas. They increased production by 14,578 barrels of crude oil and 1,684 barrels of condensate.

Of the 349 permits issued, 39 were for exploratory wells and 41 were for wells in the offshore area.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Newspapers might check the most authoritative report on the capture of Adolph Eichmann, former SS colonel. Although early dispatches said he was grabbed in Kuwait, and later rumors from Vienna claimed the Nazi butcher was found in Argentina, there's every reason to believe he was kidnaped in Cairo, almost under Dictator Nasser's nose. The heroes of the coup were two Israeli security agents helped by three British subjects — one of them a woman. The trio of Britishers were not undercover agents, just ordinary citizens who believed they were carrying out a moral duty. The big mystery: How did two Israeli security officers slip into Cairo?

Kay Starr is being wooed by wealthy Jerry Nathanson. Chums think he has a good chance of winning her hand. Tony Williams, for years the lead singer with the Platters, has left the fivesome to try his luck as a solo act. Shubert Alley isn't the only theatrical area inundated by troubled waters at the moment. All the legitimate theatres in Paris are threatening to close down in a protest against prices — but in this instance, the French actors' union and the theatre managers are in complete agreement.

Desi Arnaz wanted to visit his native Cuba and try to help U. S. - Cuban relations by conferring with Fidel Castro. But State Department aides, in off - the - record conversations advised against it, telling Desi the Castro government might easily find a way of turning his patriotic gesture into an anti-American "incident."

One of Park Ave.'s most fascinating untold tales stars a foreign beauty who has just wrecked the marriage of a popular society couple. The elegant - looking foreigner hit New York quite a few years ago, passed herself off as a doctor and graduate of a famed university, and was often seen with United Nations figures and prominent members of the international set although she was working as a $100 call girl and selling her charms for bangles and furs. One newspaperman recalls that when he first encountered her she described herself as "a medical student at Columbia University." Next time he saw her — quite a long time later, she gave him the same story. "That would have made her a medical student at Columbia for about 10 years," he says. Anyway, her flair for drama has paid off. She's scored a major triumph.

Tin Pan Alley's biggest battle in years looms in the New York State Supreme Court — Octave Music vs. Bregman, Vocco and Conn. It's a hassle over Erroll Garner's lovely tune, "Misty." The table cards at Ciro's, where Lisa Kirk is starring, carry this credit: "Act written, produced and married by Bob Wells." A friend of Ted Williams quotes him as maintaining: "There's no truth to the reports that I'll manage the Red Sox. All I want to do is finish out the season and break the 50 home run mark. This is all the ambition I have in baseball."

The ad line for the Kirk Douglas - Kim Novak flicker, "Strangers When We Meet," will delight the moralists. It's "the love story of two people who are married, but not to each other."

Sharon Sheeley, the 20-year-old song writer who was injured in the English auto crash that killed her fiancé, rock 'n' roll singer Eddie Cochran, is still in St. Martin's Hospital, Bath, recuperating from the accident. She's written a ballad about Eddie, titled "To Love and Be Loved."

Relax, everybody; there's a Society for the Prevention of World War Three located at 515 Madison Ave. What's Martha Raye up to — the party of the year? The Hotel Chelsea in Atlantic City reports she reserved the entire ninth floor for the holiday weekend, and requested the services of a staff of waiters and chambermaids around the clock. Anita Ekberg's "real" romance in Rome is more interesting than the publicized ones that actually didn't count. Frankie Hyers, who used to be a comedian with Jackie Gleason at the old Club

18, is now working as a bartender in Miami Beach.

Choreographer Joe Layton has dropped his scheduled job at the Spoleto Festival. There's no official version of what happened to change his mind. Let the astrologers figure out this one: Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, currently engaged in battling on the floor of the United Nations, have the same birthday — July 5.

Polly Bergen will make headlines on the fashion pages when she announces her new affiliation with an established dress concern. It's not just an endorsement deal — she'll be involved with the designing, manufacturing and merchandising of the clothes, which will mean a severe curtailment of her activities in show business. Some of the boys around Lindy's have figured out why Joe Louis signed with Fidel Castro: he wants to get on the Jack Paar Show!

Accused

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —Yugoslavia Friday accused Red China of "giving direct aid to most reactionary adherents of the cold war in the present world."

War Criminal Is Cooperating With Police

TEL AVIA (UPI)—Adolf Eichmann, awaiting trial in Israel as a Nazi war criminal, is cooperating fully with Israeli police in recalling details of his career as the man who exterminated 6,000,000 Jews, it was reported Friday. Cmdr. Abraham Selinger, head of the police bureau gathering information and evidence for the prosecution, said he was spending an average of two hours a day with Eichmann. During the questioning, he said, when obscure points arose Eichmann cooperated fully in clarifying them. He told a press conference the former SS (Nazi elite corps) colonel had been given pencil and paper at his own request to record his career but he declined to describe Eichmann's notes as a "confession."

Selinger said the account, written chronologically, now has reached the mid-war years when the deaths camps for Jews and "other undesirable persons" were in full operation.

Selinger told questioners Eichmann had not requested defense council but he hedged when asked to state whether the former Nazi extermination camp boss had been told he was entitled to the assistance of a lawyer.

Selinger also declined to answer when pressed on the point if Eichmann was warned that the material he has been writing might be used as evidence against him.

He would not venture a guess why Eichmann was cooperating so readily with the Israeli police investigators but said there were precedents at Nuremberg, including Rudolf Hess, the one - time deputy Fuehrer.

Informed sources said the government was expected to deny that Eichmann was nabbed by se-

Oil Activity In April Runs Some Lower

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana oil activities in April ran generally lower than in the month a year ago, the Conservation Department reported Friday.

Drilling permits totaled 349, compared with 417 in April last year, and well completions totaled 238, compared with 343.

Of the April completions, 194 were producers, 157 of oil and 37 of gas. They increased production by 14,678 barrels of crude oil and 1,684 barrels of condensate.

Of the 349 permits issued, 39 were for exploratory wells and 41 were for wells in the offshore area.

Secret agents in Argentina as reported in many newspapers throughout the world.

COULD LAST UNTIL FALL

Broadway Set For Darkness

NEW YORK (AP)—Broadway plan with all contributions made by the producers, based on a percentage of the Broadway payroll. Currently, this payroll totals $207,679 a week.

An extended deadlock over pensions between Actors Equity and the producers would cost millions, and might ruin Manhattan's summer tourist trade. Theatrical cates already talked of laying off employees.

"It's going to cost the city, cost every restaurant, every club money," said maitred' Harvey Segal of the Embers, an East Side supper club. "It's going to cost a fortune."

Equity actor Theodore Bikel of "Sound of Music" offered this gloomy appraisal: "The blackout will last either six days or four months—until the fall season begins. If the producers want to salvage anything from this season, they have to do it starting in a week at least."

Peace talks resumed Friday with the League of New York Theaters proposing a two-way pension plan, with Equity shouldering a share of the expense. This would involve a new dues rate to take advantage of high earnings of top stars.

Equity's first reaction to the suggestion was cool. However, Producer Arthur Cantor called the negotiations "a good collective bargaining session."

The old Equity contract expired at midnight Tuesday. On Wednesday night, Equity struck "The Tenth Man" in a hit-and-run maneuver whereby it was planned to close one show at a time one night at a time.

Thursday, however, the league closed all 22 Broadway shows in retaliation and for the first time in 41 years the midtown theater district was blacked out. The last Equity strike was in 1919.

Equity counsel Herman E. Cooper said Friday: "A fraction of the available blackout costs to the producers would more than meet Equity proposals."

Equity had demanded a pension

Powers' Dad

Plans To Go To Soviet Soon

NORTON, Va. (AP)—Oliver Powers expects to go to the Soviet Union in five or six weeks to see Premier Nikita Khrushchev about the release of his imprisoned pilot son.

Sol W. Cury, a businessman and vice mayor of this little southwestern Virginia city, said Friday he would accompany the 35-year-old shoemaker in the role of advisor.

Cury said a private business sponsor had been secured to pay for the trip. Powers has reported here, reportedly has been hard-pressed financially since the U2 incident broke. The father has been kept busy running from his cobbler's bench across the street to a telephone in Cury's department store where he has received calls from all over this country and overseas as well.

Francis G. Powers, 33, was the pilot of the ill-fated U2 spy plane shot down over the Soviet Union May 1. He is being held for trial on spy charges. The father has offered to exchange himself for his son if Khrushchev would allow it.

Cury would not disclose the name of the sponsor, but he said a representative of the firm would be in Norton Saturday to make formal arrangements.

The elder Powers, who lives some 23 miles away at Pound and operates a small shoe repair shop has stated she would like to accompany her husband to the U.S.S.R. but that doctors said her weakened heart could not stand the strain. She expects to stay home on their seven-acre farm. COULD LAST UNTIL FALL

Broadway Set For Darkness

NEW YORK (AP)—Broadway plan with all contributions made by the producers, based on a percentage of the Broadway payroll. Currently, this payroll totals $207,679 a week.

An extended deadlock over pensions between Actors Equity and the producers would cost millions, and might ruin Manhattan's summer tourist trade. Theatrical cafes already talked of laying off employees.

"It's going to cost the city, cost every restaurant, every club money," said maitre'd Harvey Segal of the Embers, an East Side supper club. "It's going to cost a fortune."

Equity actor Theodore Bikel of "Sound of Music," offered this gloomy appraisal: "The blackout will last either six days or four months—until the fall season begins. If the producers want to salvage anything from this season, they have to do it starting in a week at least."

Peace talks resumed Friday with the League of New York Theaters proposing a two-way pension plan, with Equity shouldering a share of the expense. This would involve a new dues rate to take advantage of high earnings of top stars.

Equity's first reaction to the suggestion was cool. However, Producer Arthur Cantor called the negotiations "a good collective bargaining session."

The old Equity contract expired at midnight Tuesday. On Wednesday night, Equity struck "The Tenth Man" in a hit-and-run maneuver whereby it was planned to close one show at a time one night at a time.

Thursday, however, the league closed all 22 Broadway shows in retaliation and for the first time in 41 years the midtown theater district was blacked out. The last Equity strike was in 1919.

Equity counsel Herman E. Cooper said Friday: "A fraction of the avoidable blackout costs to the producers would more than meet Equity proposals."

Equity had demanded a pension
